Peasants Would Rule

—By Arthur Brisbane—

NOT MUCH, except odds and ends of news, when this was written, late yesterday afternoon. The fatal tracks of the oil bonds led in new directions. The name of an important judge was dragged in. He says no one sent him any bonds.

Senator Borah, the great purifier, got $300 more yesterday to help pay back the gold that Mr. Sinclair handed over. The Republican party must be purified, says Borah. Theodore Roosevelt, second, sent $100 to help purify.

It is doubtful, however, whether all the perfumes of Arabia or two Anna Held milk baths could purify the worried old party.

Being found out, is a terrible thing. Everybody knows that both big parties take all the campaign funds they can get. The Republicans got the bigger gifts because their chances are usually better, and their memory for kind words and deeds is better.

It is certain that neither Will Hays nor any of the big Republicans know where the Sinclair bonds came from. The oil scandal had not started when the bonds were contributed.

If Sinclair had offered a bundle of bonds to the Democratic donkey, to wipe out campaign expense debts, that intelligent animal would have taken them gladly.

However, the elephant got caught, the donkey did not, so the donkey feels virtuous.

Speaking of slush funds, bribes, etc., you should read the book written by Judge Kavanaugh of Chicago, after thirty-three years on the bench. Three hundred and fifty thousand individuals make their living, partly or entirely, by crime, in our happy country, he says. Last year they contributed 12,000 murders to the nation's news items.

Public indifference is to blame, says the judge. Each country gets as much crime as its indifference deserves. Judge Kavanaugh favors use of the whip, because "no crime leader retains the respect of his gang, after he has winced under the lash. The moron and racketeer fear the cat o' nine tails more than prison. Our 350,000 criminals steal yearly enough to build the Panama canal."

They steal more than that. And public gambling at race tracks, another form of crime, legalized by grafting politicians, takes from the public each year enough to build the Panama canal three times.

More trouble in distressed Rumania. The peasants want to rule, and the socialists back them. Here we have no peasant population, although not all of us know it. Once, the late George E. Gould on a tour of inspection over the Missouri Pacific took his family with him. The mayor, chamber of commerce and civic organizations of a small city came to the private car, asking for a better railroad station.

One of Gould's charming young daughters, in white dress, blue sash and white kid shoes, said: "It's very nice of those peasants to come down and see papa, isn't it?"

We have some millions of farmers that would like to run this country, partly, but they don't know how to go about it. No real organization, for one thing. Next fall they will get wonderful promises and then think it over four more years.

The Socialists' national executive committee met to discuss a Socialist national platform and solemnly decided that Republicans and Democrats "serve corrupt oligarchies." Harsh words, but luckily many good Republicans are not corrupt.

ENTIRE FAMILY WIPED OUT BY BLAZE; EIGHT PERSONS ARE RESCUED

Three persons, an entire family, are dead; a woman is dying, and several other rescued and rescuers are suffering from burns and injuries sustained as result of flames sweeping through the four-story, eight-family Aberdeen apartments in Holden pl., Dorchester, today.

Trapped in their apartments, the occupants were all imperilled by the quick sweep of flames started, it was asserted by the building agent, by an explosion.

Three separate investigations were begun before the bricks of the apartment block were cool.

One was by the State Fire Marshal's office, another by the Boston fire department under direction of Acting Commissioner Sennott, and another by the city building department.

Eight persons were injured or overcome by smoke during the rescuing of 18 occupants of the block, that is in the Upham's Corner section, most of the 18 being carried down 60 and 80-foot ladders.

The casualty list of the fire disaster follows:

THE DEAD

Mrs. Anna Elizabeth Donahue, 70, dead of burns and smoke on top floor.

Walter Donahue, 30, her son.

Miss Elizabeth A. Donahue, 35, her daughter.

GALLOWS PAINTED RED FOR DORIS M'DONALD

Montreal, March 20 (INS)—Doris Palmer McDonald, trembling at the fate that awaits her, and George McDonald, grim and taciturn, are scheduled to be removed to within the bleak confines of Valleyfield Prison tomorrow to await execution on the gallows at dawn Friday.

Despite unconfirmed rumors that Doris' sentence had been commuted, the authorities proceeded with their preparations for the double execution.

The condemned couple were convicted of killing Adelard Bonchard, a taxicab driver. Doris, an American girl, will be the first woman hanged in Quebec in about 20 years.

The old Provincial gallows has been painted a bright red for the occasion. It will be given an eleventh-hour test by Hangman Arthur Ellis. Three convicts have been selected to assist the hangman.

Officials were specific in declaring the federal government has not act-

3 FAREWELL MESSAGES OF DEAD FOUND IN $4

Three farewell messages, left by the six men who lived three days in her forward torpedo compartment, were found in the submarine S4 today.

The contents of the letters were not divulged by the naval board of investigation, which found them. The texts, however, were sent to the navy department at Washington.

Whether the messages were addressed to relatives of the men who perished waiting for help that came too late, or whether they comprised a "log" of the three days of horror and supreme courage spent in the steel trap on the ocean floor, naval officials refused to say.

At least one is believed to have been written by Lieut. Graham Newhall Fitch, who tapped to the rescue fleet the series of epic messages telling of hope and courage that never to the son of F. Blackwood Fay, prominent attorney, while she was employed as a clerk in a Boston candy store was hailed as a Cinderella romance, announced that she would contest the will.

A bill, based on the recommendation of Governor Fuller, to give Massachusetts voters the opportunity to express their preference for President in the presidential primaries, was today reported unanimously, after an official hearing, by the legislative committee on election laws.

Attached to the bill is an emergency preamble which would make the act effective immediately upon its signature by the Governor, for this year only.

PRIEST DARES DEATH IN FATAL APARTMENT HOUSE BLAZE

Braving fire and smoke, a priest, risking his life to help rescue the living and to absolve the dying, was the outstanding hero of the fire in The Aberdeen, corner Holden pl. and Dudley st., Upham's Corner, early today.

He is the Rev. Percival Quill, of St. Paul's church, Roxbury. Receiving a telephone call from a person living near the burning four-story building, the priest hurriedly dressed and ran all the way.

When he arrived, neighbors and taxicab drivers, together with several patrolmen, had entered the building. On the second floor all encountered dense smoke.

Through it all the priest fought his way, almost choking with the smoke and forced to protect his face and hands with his raiment.

He finally arrived at the top floor.

FOUND DYING

Knowing he had parishioners in a suite on this floor, Fr. Quill fought his way to their apartment. It was the home of the Donahues, three in number, all adults.

Recently come to Boston from Quebec, the family had worshiped at St. Paul's. The mother, Mrs. Anna Elizabeth Donahue was 70, a devout woman, and was the first to meet the priest at the church. Later he became acquainted with her son, Walter, 36, and his sister, Elizabeth A., 38. The mother was the widow of William Donahue of Quebec.

A fearful discovery was that the priest made when he had found the mother prostrate on the floor of her bedroom on the west side of the building.

NEAR DEATH DOOR

Leaning over, he found she was dying. Immediately he administered the last rites of his church.

Behind him, into the building and up the stairway had come Joseph Hayner, fireman, and aide to Chief Sennott, acting fire commissioner in the absence of Commr. Hultman.

Just as Mrs. Donahue died, Hayner reached the priest's side.

The battle to get into the rooms on the south side, occupied by the son and daughter, proved a task filled with even greater dangers for the priest and Hayner. But they lived through it, though both were nearly overcome. They found the son lying on the floor, his feet near a door and his head almost at the foot of his bed.

It seemed as though he and his mother, awakened by the heat, had tried to flee and found their escape cut off.

The son was dead.

In the daughter's room she was found lying dead in bed.

On their trip down the stairs to the second floor, priest and Hayner narrowly escaped the experience of having to be rescued themselves. For flame and smoke trapped them by one stairway, and a second stairway they sought was almost as bad.

Police Rescue Many During Fire Horror

Many policemen, most of them from Station 2, others from more distant stations, figured as rescuers in the early morning fire disaster in the Aberdeen apartments at Upham's Corner.

When the work was over, Patrolman J. C. Murphy and Patrolman J. F. Tobin of Station 9 both had been carried in ambulances to City Hospital. Murphy's hand was cut and both he and Tobin had been overcome by smoke.

Patrolman Arthur Fraher of Station 3, assisted by Patrolman George Dans of Station 10, effected sensational rescues of Mrs. Anna Berlara, eighty, and the octogenarian's two nieces, Misses Edith and Mary Fuller.

Special Officer Bernard Norton of the narcotic squad, living nearby at 10 Princefield st., was awakened from his sleep by his daughter. She told him there was a fire in a neighboring building. He aped to help in the rescues.

Sergt. Adlen Edwards carried out one of the tenants. Patrolmen John Begin and Martin Kelley had arrived on the scene early and had gone through smoke and heat from door and suite to door and suite, arousing tenants and aiding them out.

Policemen penetrated with firemen to the top floor and risked their lives in the perils there and on the third floor.

18 Rescued From Fire Horror

The following were among the rescued in the fire disaster at the Aberdeen apartment building in Upham's Corner today:

MRS. ANNA MARGARET MacCUSLAND, taken down ladder in critical condition from second floor.

MRS. ANNA HOLLAND, daughter of Mrs. MacCusland, rescued from second floor down ladder.

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE KELLEY and baby, taken down ladder from third floor.

MR. AND MRS. JAMES T. Phillips, taken down ladder from fourth floor.

MRS. ANNA BARBARA, eighty.

MISSES EDITH AND MARY FULLER, her nieces.

HENRY L. MILLER and his wife.

MR. AND MRS. DOMINICK LAPRE and their nephew, LOUIS LAPRE, 16, of Middleboro, and a guest, MARY CRIMP, 7, also of Middleboro, taken down ladder from second floor.

MR. AND MRS. WALTER McDERMOTT, taken down ladder from third floor.

OFFICER, TAXI MEN HELP RESCUERS

A tenant, believed to have been George P. Kelley, living on the third floor of the fire-swept Aberdeen apartments, at Upham's Corner, owes his life to the heroism of a policeman and three taxicab drivers.

Awakened by pounding on the door—it was that of a brave woman, a tenant who had turned to the task of arousing other tenants, she having been the first she aroused in the building—Kelley woke his wife and with their baby in his arms, started for the street. They found their way blocked at both stairways. So they turned back for a few minutes. The heat and smoke and flame poured into their apartment by way of the dumb waiter shaft.

Firemen took out Mrs. Kelley and the baby, by way of an aerial ladder. Kelley collapsed, then revived, then fought his way to a window. It was on another side of the house. It had been left open for ventilation purposes. He leaned out, his face hot, his throat dry.

He was seen by persons below.

They gave the call for help.

Patrolman John H. Murphy of Station 2, who was on his way to his home, and Dennis Griffin, Thomas Thompson and John McDermott, taxi drivers, who had hurried to the scene upon seeing passing apparatus, responded to the cry for rescuers.

They found in a nearby yard a long ladder, which they raised against the side of the building. While two of the men held the ladder at the ground, the other two went up to the window, drew the victim out of the opening and together slowly and carefully made their way down to the ground again with their rescued.

WIFE SNATCHED HUSBAND FROM DEATH IN FIRE

Mrs. James T. Phillips who, with her husband, was taken by firemen from the fourth floor of the burning Aberdeen apartments, related a vivid story of how she succeeded in snatching Phillips from the flames and dragging him to a window.

"My husband tried to aid me," she said, "but the thick smoke and hot flames in the hallway were too much for him. Again and again he tried it, only to be beaten back. It grew hotter and hotter. I felt as if a terrific fever were coursing through my body. My husband's face was red and apparently burned.

"Then he collapsed. I caught him up, and though I was weakened from the heat and smoke, managed to drag him to the window. I got his head and shoulders outside and leaned out myself.

SCREAMED FOR HELP.

"There at least we could breathe air that was not scorching hot. I screamed as loud as I could to attract attention. I guess my voice was too weak and my throat so dry the sound did not carry far.

"But they saw us. I saw them running up the long ladder and I felt better. I prayed life would hold out for both of us until rescue came. I prayed as I never prayed before.

"Then the firemen arrived. I made them take my husband first; then they carried me down after him. Thank God, we were saved. Thank God for the brave firemen we owe our lives to, and the policemen also.

'NO FIRE ESCAPES'

"There were so many rescuers, swarming all through the building. Thank God for them all. It was a narrow escape we had. There were no fire escapes on the building.

"The hallways were filled with smoke and flames. The stairways—there were two—were both blocked. We were just trapped; there was no way to get out. My husband and I both had decided it was death unless we could be rescued from the window."

Mrs. Phillips told the firemen there was a hot-air explosion in the upper story soon after she was aroused.

"The air got terribly oppressive, then very, very hot," she said. "Suddenly there was a suppressed sort of roar; it blew out doors and windows. With this the rush of hot air and tongues of flame and thick smoke was greater than before. We were close to death."

Sergt. Adrian Edwards.

Three alarms were sounded for the fire, the most spectacular and thrilling since the fire horror on Bay State rd., Back Bay.

According to Acting Fire Chief Albert J. Caulfield, in a finding following an investigation, the fire started near a gas range in the Donahue kitchen, but did not burn below the top floor.

PERISHED IN SLEEP

The $10,000 damage, Chief Caulfield said, was mainly by smoke and water.

"The fire," he said, "had been burning between the air spaces in the ceilings probably for some time before discovery.

"Occupants of the apartment were probably smothered in bed before they knew anything about the fire. The blaze worked through to the roof, but it did not burn the roof off.

"A rear window was blown out, allowing air to enter and fan the flames.

In a verbal report to Chief State Fire Inspector Timothy Murphy today, Inspector Trainor declared that no hint of incendiarism is attached to the fire but that the exact cause has not yet been determined. Inspector Trainor said the investigation is still under way.

Sensational rescues down 60-foot ladders, heroic acts by tenants of the building, by firemen, policemen and civilians, the work of religious duty and of aiding in rescues by a priest, gave the fire highlights out of the ordinary course of routine in the work of the fire department.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Miller were rescued by firemen when flames neared their suite and cut off escape by the stairways.

To add to the difficulty of rescue work gas pipes in the building exploded and the entire area was so saturated with escaping fumes that the firemen had to don gas masks to do their work.

The three dead were caught as in a trap in their apartment on the third floor. Mrs. Donahue died a few moments after the Rev. Fr. Quill, curate of St. Paul's Church in Roxbury, outstanding individual hero of the disaster, had administered the last rites of his church.

The priest had battled his way with a few chief's aides, to the top floor, both at risk of their lives.

When they reached the rooms of the dead woman's son and daughter nearby, both were lifeless, the priest administered the rites of conditional absolution.

VICTIMS ROASTED

So intense was the heat from the fire that hundreds fled from their homes nearby fearing the dwellings would be burned. Many were scantily clad.

An unusual feature of the fire was the part a dumb waiter shaft played in the disaster. The blaze started in the basement, and worked its way to the shaft, spreading into and through all floors as they mounted.

On the top floor both the Donahues and the family of James T. Phillips had left their windows open for ventilation purposes. To this fact that their apartment windows were open was perhaps due the tragedy that wiped out the Donahue family.

So fierce was the heat in the chimney-like draft from dumbwaiter shaft through the Donahue kitchen and dining room, thence through the bedrooms, that the wallpaper was first peeled from the walls, then boiled and scorched; furniture was blackened and blistered.

Henry L. Miller was apparently overcome as he slept. Her brother had arisen and was on his way to his mother's room, perhaps, when he fell, literally roasted to death by the intense heat. His mother, too, had managed to arise from her sleep and was found a mountain dying. Flames had not touched any of the three bodies; all were seared, blistered, blackened by the heat that made their suite look as though the hot breath of a fiery furnace had passed through.

SAVE AGED WOMAN

The Phillips family faced the same death. But they had fewer windows open, and hence there was less draft from the common dumb waiter shaft of the building, through their apartment.

Acting Commissioner Sennott was assisted in his inquiry today by Acting Chief Fox and Deputy Chief MacLean, who had been with him on the scene throughout the fire.

One heroine of the fire was Mrs. Anna Holland, a tenant. Awakened by the crackling of the flames, she went from suite to suite, rapping at the doors and arousing the other tenants. She was the first rescuer on the job and the first in the building to know the danger.

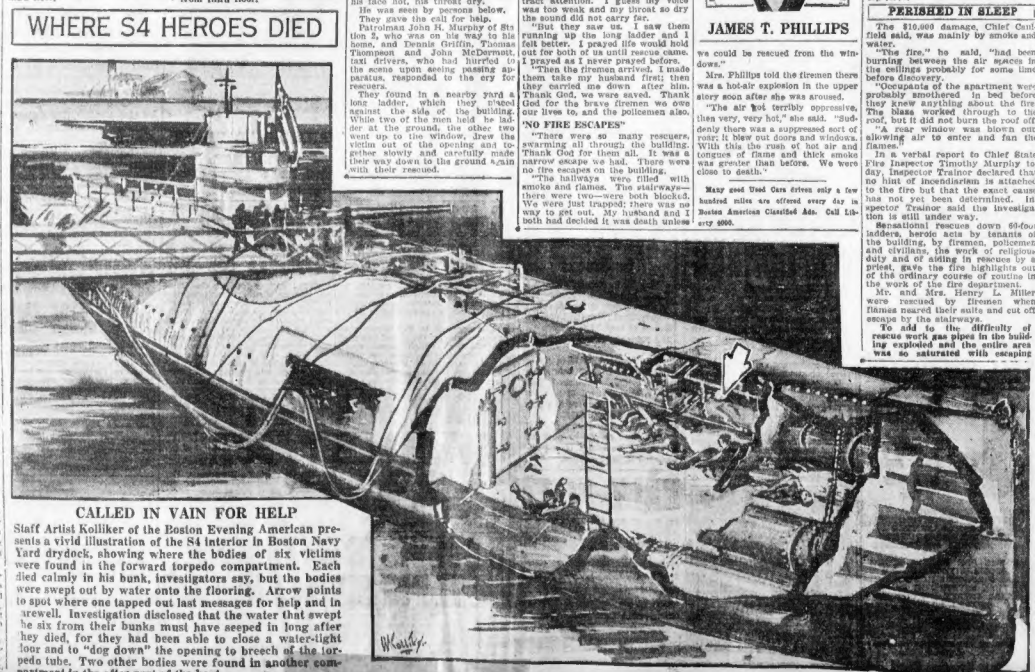
The loss in the fire was set at $12,000, firemen stated.

Owners of the building were the L. J. Fosdick estate, and the agent in charge was Mrs. Myra Hyde of Dorchester.

Mrs. MacCusland, 70 years of age and mother of Mrs. Anna Holland, was rescued from a window on the third floor, and taken down a ladder by firemen. Mrs. Holland's husband, William E., was away on a business trip.

A few days ago Mrs. MacCusland came home from a hospital after a serious surgical operation which left her in a weakened condition.

WHERE 84 HEROES DIED



CALLED IN VAIN FOR HELP
Staff Artist Kolliker of the Boston Evening American presents a vivid illustration of the S4 interior in Boston Navy Yard drydock, showing where the bodies of six victims were found in the forward torpedo compartment. Each died calmly in his bunk, investigators say, but the bodies were swept out by water onto the flooring. Arrow points to spot where one tapped out last messages for help and in farewell. Investigation disclosed that the water that swept he six from their bunks must have seeped in long after hey died, for they had been able to close a water-tight loor and to "dog down" the opening to breech of the torpedo tube. Two other bodies were found in another compartment in the after part of the boat.

CLAIM CORINNE GRIFFITH IS THEIR AUNT

A claimed relationship with the motion picture star, Corinne Griffith, and a mysterious offer of "movie" stardom for themselves today added color to the fight of two Boston children for an inheritance of $172,075.

The children are Georgianna and Virginia Griffiths of 602 Massachusetts ave., aged 10 and 8 respectively. Their mother, Mrs. Anna Griffiths, is now in Quincy seeking the fortune.

Although she film actress, Corinne Griffith, spells her name without a final "e," the children's aunt, Mrs. Mary Sheldon, declared today the star is the children's second cousin.

The motion picture "offer," which led to gorgeous dreams on the part of the children, came from a mystery man who interviewed the two tots and their aunt and said he represented a big producing firm. This the firm denied.

"George Griffiths, father of Georgianna and Virginia, is the first cousin of Corinne Griffith," said Mrs. Sheldon, who is caring for the children while the mother is seeking the estate left by her husband's mother.

"When the man talked to us of the movies, we thought he must have heard of the children through Corinne. He said he would return to make screen tests, but could not make a final offer without talking to their mother."

The father and mother have been separated for years and the mother has been waging a long struggle to support her children and to keep them with her.

HOPE FOR AN 'L' AGREEMENT IS NEARLY GONE

Little hope for a majority for either public ownership or continuation of public control of the Elevated was expressed today by members of the joint legislative committee on street railways and metropolitan affairs. The committee met for what was expected to be its last get-together.

The time limit for the committee report expires today, and there is no sentiment in favor of extending the time.

Rep. Newland H. Holmes of Weymouth, clerk of the committee, said he intended to offer a motion that the committee report back to the House that it has failed to agree. This he will do, he said, if it is apparent the deadlock will continue.

Should the motion be made and carried it is expected that the whole question will immediately be turned over to the joint committee on ways and means.

The lineup of the members is so close that a minority, holding the balance of power, is able to block any move, it was pointed out.

$18 FOR WIFE AND SIX CHILDREN, $17 FOR HUBBY

Although she has six children to clothe, feed and house on $18 a week—to say nothing of the time she must spend caring for them—Mrs. Adah F. McMurrough of Foxboro ought to go to work, in the opinion of her husband.

Declaring her husband, John, struck her several times, Mrs. McMurrough obtained a divorce in Probate Court at Dedham. Before fixing alimony, Judge McCoole asked the husband how much he was making. Finding it was $35 a week, the court allowed his wife $18, or $1 more than half.

The solar spotlight was in perfect working order to flood the New England stage with sunshine when Miss Spring made her official bow to her anxious audience at 3.45 o'clock this afternoon.

Refraining with becoming modesty from discussing the wardrobe of the dainty miss, the local weather officials hesitated to predict the fashions she would flash, but intimated that fresh to strong westerly winds blowing across the open anticipleiocter would necessitate wraps of moderate weight, and they did!

LYNN MAN ENDS LIFE AS WIFE FACES COURT

Being forced to face a judge today on a charge of manufacturing liquor seemed to Mrs. Anna Radsley of Laurel st., Lynn, about the worst thing that could happen to her.

She was quite sure it was the ultimate tragedy when she had to take her pretty daughter Alice along for an interpreter.

The mother winced quite noticeably as she testified that her husband preferred her and made her manufacture the liquor. And then Judge Reeve fined her $75.

But there was worse in store for her.

Reaching home, she found the house filled with gas and her husband dead, a tube by his side. Medical Examiner Breed said it was suicide. The husband had not been to court and did not know of the outcome of the case when he took his life.

Another daughter had recently been missing. It was while returning her to her parents after finding her with a girl chum, that police discovered the liquor evidence.

FAVOR RETURN OF AUTO LICENSE TO MARGOLIS

The automobile operator's license of Nathan Margolis of Dorchester will be restored to him if a bill reported favorably today by the legislative Committee on Highways becomes law. Margolis, whose automobile killed a man in Dorchester while Margolis was racing with a policeman in pursuit of a gunman, suffered suspension of his license at order of Frank A. Goodwin, then registrar of motor vehicles.

The fatality occurred early last December in Dorchester after the policeman had commandeered Margolis' car. State Senator William I. Hennessey sponsored the bill to restore Margolis' operator's license.

NEW YORK THEATER GUILD TO ACT HERE, SAYS BETTY ALDEN

First of Performances to Aid Russian Youth to Be Given April 9

SECURE IN THE ENORMOUS DRAWING POWER MANIFESTED by the New York Theater Guild's presentations of "Porgy," no less than two local philanthropies have snapped up "nights" for themselves during the Guild's Boston visit. One takes the opening, on April 9, the other must be satisfied with the second Monday. Boston is ever heedful of the needs of Russian Youth in Exile and the opening night of "Porgy" is to benefit these expatriates. A glance at the list of sponsors and it appears that the town has been combed for the high and the mighty ones friendly to the cause.

SOCIALLY, THE LIST IS CREME DE LA CREME. TO GIVE it in its entirety is not to be thought of. To skim lightly from one super-important cognomen to another equally distinguished is to enumerate so many Hales, so many Hunnewells, so many Appletons, so many Bradleys, and Codmans, Cabots, Dexters, Gardiners, Fays, Lees, Lawrences, Thayers, Pickmans, Welds, etc. If an important Boston name is not on the list I've yet to discover it. So brilliantly sponsored an opening should mark another milestone for the fund for Russian Youth. Certainly in Boston they have an appeal never unheeded.

THE SECOND PHILANTHROPY TO CORRAL THE THEATRE GUILD'S offering is the Nursery Training School, perhaps of not such widespread appeal as the Russian Youth, but having a very potent drawing power locally. The School and its benefit also has a patroness list overpoweringly impressive. It commences with important "A's" and "B's" and winds up grandly in the "W's" and "Y's" having gathered within its alphabetical limits the town's exalted to the number of two hundred or so. Of benefits there seem to be no end. Nor of personages ready to sponsor them. The supply of both, benefits and personages, is amazing.

OH, YES! AND HERE'S STILL ANOTHER. THE HOME AND SCHOOL VISITORS ASSOCIATION. And their concert in Steinert Hall tomorrow evening by members of the Symphony. While the sponsor list for this lacks something of length, it is nevertheless fairly teeming with names supremely meaningful in Boston. Mrs. Henry Parkman, Mrs. Edward Pickman, Mrs. Richard Eliot Danielson, Mrs. Algernon Coolidge, Mrs. Charles M. Cabot, Mrs. William Ellery, Mrs. George Foote, Mrs. Maurice Osborne, Mrs. Richard Wadsworth and Miss Rose Dexter are samples of its quality.

THE SHINY, NEWLY PAINTED VAN MRS. CHARLES A. BUTLER presented to the Disabled Ex-Service Men's Exchange is doing a yeoman service these days. Each morning it must be packed up, bright and early, and trundled away with its load of handmade goods. Mrs. Edward Mauran Beals, devoted to the Exchange and its workers, has arranged a series of sales that keeps the van almost constantly on the move about the country. Today is Taunton day; tomorrow is Salem day, and Thursday is Boston once again.

HUBBARD HOUSE IN TAUNTON IS THE HOSPITABLE ROOF to welcome the traveling van and its contents. Mrs. G. T. Hartshorn is the matron chiefly to be thanked for putting the sale on. In Salem, one of those dignified mansions fronting on Washington sq. houses the sale, and Mrs. MacDonald White is hostess for the day. Back in town the beautifully handwrought work of the disabled ex-service men will be displayed in the Hotel Kenmore-Brnemore. There, Mrs. Clarence R. Edwards and Mrs. Curtis Guild will be on hand as they have been countless times before, at previous sales.

THE LATE WINTER PROGRESSION OVER THE ATLANTIC to the Old World slackens in numbers not a bit, apparently. The urge to travel is keen the year around and in every month of the twelve. Miss Marian Homans of Lime st. is sailing to favorite foreign places via the steamship Conte Rosso. The Rosso sailed last Saturday, and aside from Miss Homans of Boston has aboard Mrs. William P. Blodgett and Miss Mary O. Bowditch, both of whom hail from the same fine old social stronghold of "The Hill." Bowditch, Blodgett and Homans are names essentially Bostonian to decorate the Rosso register the present crossing.

THE STEAMSHIP CARONIA when she steamed out of Boston in Sunday's sleet and storm was heading for England with Mrs. Pierce P. McGann of Beacon st. aboard. Mrs. McGann goes to England for a spring holiday and returns home sometime late in April via the same liner. Spring in England will be pleasantly passed in visiting, principally, with the former Miss Rosamond Fay, sister of Mrs. McGann, who wedded with Capt. Henry Bernard Montague of the British Royal Navy, and makes her home at Bishops Waltham in Haute, England.

THE MUENCHEN SAILS today from New York with Count Fink von Finkenstein aboard, bound back to his native Germany after several months in this country studying the ways of higher finance. Also on the Muenchen are a trio of professional lights, hailing from Boston and hereabouts, by name and other designations. Chief Justice Walter P. Hall of the Supreme Court, Prof. Henry W. Holmes of Harvard University and Henry A. Wyman, known to fame in the legal set. The latter three are bound for France.

MUSSOLINI FOR VATICAN PACT

Rome, March 20 (AP)—Premier Mussolini expressed optimism today concerning an eventual understanding on the "Roman question" involving the relations between the Vatican and the Italian state.

The Premier was receiving a committee of the Center party, composed of Catholics favorable to the Fascist regime when the question came up.

Mussolini stated that the relation between church and state has been much ameliorated and indeed is satisfactory on almost every point, so that a possible understanding, despite the many difficulties inherent upon such a momentous arrangement, can be looked upon "with virile optimism."

According to reliable reports, the proposed solution involves granting to the Holy See an extension of its territory, which will enjoy the right of extra-territoriality such as the present papal territory enjoys.

WILBUR COMES TODAY TO VIEW S4

faltered during the long hours of futile waiting in a cold, damp prison filled with air that ever fouled.

During the hours when the rescue attempt was at its height, a message was sent to Fitch and his five brave companions from the oscillators of the S4 to the effect that the lieutenant's wife and mother constantly were praying for him.

One letter found is believed to have been an answer to that message.

The examination of the torpedo compartment was partially completed and the board moved to the battery room for a superficial examination. There they found the hatch and bulkheads closed and the oxygen supply untouched. There was mud on the deck and the gauges could not be read, for they had been crushed by the collision.

In the control room the S4's log was found and salvaged. Some personal effects and confidential papers were taken from the battery room.

Secretary of the Navy Curtis D. Wilbur inspected the submarine following a trip from Pittsburgh. At the conclusion of the inspection he addressed the divers and executive officers of the salvage work, commending them for their work. Congress, he told them, would probably officially recognize the feat.

The navy head's trip here was made primarily to fulfill a promise which he made to Diver Tom Eadie. The Secretary promised to visit the scene of salvage work and found himself unable to do so, so took this occasion, he said, to commend the men and also view the salvaged craft.

In the torpedo chamber the board viewed further tragic evidence of those last hours when six men breathed carbon dioxide and seeping chloride gas and Lieut. Fitch swinging a torpedo wrench, rapped out to the world that they were not afraid.

The wrench used by Fitch was found today behind a bathe lantern in the compartment where he had placed it, expecting probably to use it again. Death overtook him before he could tap another message.

The implement was photographed in the hand of Capt. James D. Wilson.

It is a T-handled socket implement, a foot in length and weighing between two and three pounds. It is designed for use in assembling and dissembling torpedoes.

One end of its handle is scarred and partially flattened. Fitch used it as he clung to the steel hatch ladder, hammering against the sloping steel of the compartment, high up so to be nearer those for whom its story was meant.

No pen ever wrote a sadder message than this tool rapped out against the steel compartment wall whose gray paint is chipped away.

WAS A CODE EXPERT

Fitch was a code expert. His first messages—word that life existed—were sent to the divers December 18, the day following the crash. His later messages were received through the oscillating system of he S6, she sunken submarine's sister craft.

"Will you be long now?" That was one.

And the last, received about 2 o'clock in the morning of December 20, was:

"We are still alive, but slowly dying for lack of fresh air."

That was the last message the S6 could decode, although nine hours later there came rapping sounds which never have been explained. Perhaps Fitch's weakening arm swung the hammer against the floor of the S4 because he was not strong enough to climb the ladder. Perhaps it was then the three last messages of farewell were prepared by men who knew all hope was gone.

Passing on, the officers came upon a strange contrivance—a portable, air-tight flashlight to which was attached, with a piece of string, a watch.

The hands of the watch pointed to the hour of 3:19. Nineteen minutes past three o'clock. Was it Tuesday morning? Was it Tuesday night? Was it, perhaps, Wednesday morning, December 21, when all life in that cold black chamber had ebbed like a tide and there was no longer a hand to wind its stem?

How the trim tanks of the torpedo room, the investigating board discovered. A further examination of the oxygen bottle showed it contained considerable unreleased oxygen.

FITCH'S FATHER THERE.

Col. Graham D. Fitch, father of Lt. Fitch, today, for the first time, looked upon the ship that was the tomb of his son. With Admiral Andrews he sailed to the dry dock and stood for a time gazing down upon the S4. He spoke no word and after a time left the scene.

Much of the mystery surrounding the S4's fatal plunge was cleared up by the investigating board today. Water, they said, rushed into the battery room and chlorine gas immediately formed, sweeping the ship, with the exception of two compartments, into which it later seeped.

It was impossible for men to remain at the controls, they pointed out, and to escape immediate death they fled to the engine compartment. Some were lost in the inrushing waters, others were felled by chlorine gas, which eats the linen membrane of the lining of the lungs.

There was no time for manning the pumps and blowing the tanks, the naval men said. The S4 was out of control two minutes after she was struck because the chlorine gas drove the members of her crew from the control room.

Meanwhile the last of the eight bodies taken from the S4 were positively identified at Chelsea Naval Hospital and from Washington came the order allowing for their release to relatives.

The body of J. W. Sternman will be placed aboard a train tonight to be taken to his home in Riverside, R. I. An escort of 12 enlisted men and a petty officer will accompany it to the train.

To his wife in Fall River, the body of Russell A. Crabb will be sent some time tonight or tomorrow morning. A naval escort will attend the transportation of each.

The place of Lieut. Fitch's burial has not yet been decided. When his body leaves the hospital it will be borne by six lieutenant-comrades in the naval service, William E. Snyder, T. E. Reneker, D. H. Kone, K. F. Horne, G. H. Balm and W. W. Wakefield. Sixteen enlisted men will accompany the procession.

S4'S 'MESSENGER' OF HOPE

"TAPPER" THAT FINALLY SPELLED FAREWELL

This torpedo wrench photographed in the hand of Capt. James D. Wilson, U. S. N., was found in the torpedo room with the bodies of Lieut. Fitch and his six comrades, who had used it to "tap" their last messages to the outside world. Marks on the interior of the boat and on the wrench showed how they sent the messages in hope of deliverance.

FAY WIDOW TO FIGHT WILL

The only other heir-at-law is a sister, Mrs. Ethel F. Ford of New York City, and Judge Joseph R. McCoole of the Norfolk County Probate Court has been appointed special administrator.

In connection with the $65,000 bequest to Mary E. Bennett, the will stated it was made "in recognition of her faithful and conscientious labor in my behalf."

Franklin Lewis Fay and Amy Christine McLellan were wedded in a secret marriage in Woonsocket, R. I., on June 2, 1926, after his parents had attempted to break up the romance. They decided to take the young man on a trip to Europe, but he slipped away to Rhode Island and married the candy clerk before starting.

When the marriage became known to Fay's family he was ordered to give up his bride and did so, for some time at least.

Mrs. Fay left her employment and resided with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel McLellin, in Roxbury. Mrs. Fay now lives at 122 Bowdoin st, Dorchester.

In 1910 Fay figured in one of the most unusual actions in local court history, when his inheritance from the estate of his grandfather Franklin L. Fay, believed to be worth $35,000, was sold at auction by order of the Supreme Court because of the young man's indebtedness. It was believed to have been bought in by his family.

were overcome shortly after 1 o'clock. They were removed to the administration building to be revived and later were sent to the prison infirmary. Seventy-five prisoners are helping the firemen in a desperate battle.

The tin factory, the photograph studio, and the small cook shop were burned before firemen could get lines of hose to the Hudson River after the water pressure failed.

Before adequate streams could be thrown in other buildings in the group, the blacksmith shop and the jobbing plant had been completely destroyed. Damage was conservatively placed at $375,000.

Calls were sent to Ossining and other nearby towns. Three Ossining volunteer companies responded and finding the water supply inadequate, ran lines to the Hudson river, which passes close to the prison.

At one time the shoe shop caught fire, but firemen succeeded in putting out the blaze and turned to other buildings.

Widow Wants to Escort S4 Hero's Body to Capital

Bridgeport, Ct., March 20 (AP)—An appeal that she be permitted to accompany to Washington the body of her husband, who met his tragic fate with five others in the torpedo room of the S4 will be made to the navy department by Mrs. Frank Snizek.

It is her wish to have the special train bearing the bodies taken from the submarine in Charlestown navy yard to Washington stop at this city that she may board the train and continue to the national capital.

The Snizeks, making their home here, had been married but three months when the Paulding rammed the S4.

ADOPT FULLER'S PRIMARY PLAN

ary. Independent candidate for delegate-at-large to the Republican national convention; John C. Gordon, George W. Pratt and William S. Howe, all of Somerville.

PRESCOTT LUKEWARM.

Qualified endorsement was given by Francis Prescott, chairman of the Republican state committee. Rep. John A. Jones of Peabody said he was opposed, but would favor it if it were practical or binding upon the delegates.

Prescott contended the pledged delegate and not the unpledged one is the one that can be controlled.

"Any action taken on the delegate's hand would be a most unfortunate thing," he declared.

He held that the delegates must face the question of nominating a candidate who can win throughout the country and that the first duty is to formulate a party platform.

TUCK IS OPPOSED

Representative Jones took exceptions to the Governor's remarks that the bill would not pass and to his "dirty politics" speech on Friday.

"In this instance the Legislature is doing all it can regardless of what it did in other cases," he said.

Whitfield Tuck of Winchester member of the Democratic state committee, opposed the preferential primary outright, saying the fight is between the Governor and Frank A. Goodwin.

"Goodwin will get four votes to one for Fuller," Tuck asserted "The suspicion that the Governor contemplated a large preferential preference for himself may not be groundless."

CALL SCHWAB, ROCKEFELLER, IN COAL CASE

Washington, March 20 (INS)—After listening to additional stories of the poverty and misery in the Pennsylvania soft coal fields, the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee today issued forthwith subpoenas for John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Charles M. Schwab, president of the Bethlehem steel Corporation, and R. B. Mellon, a director of the Pittsburgh Coal Co. Several railroad presidents, including Patrick H. Crowley, may be summoned later.

"We are calling these men to give us constructive suggestions for remedying the present situation," said Senator Watson (Rep.) of Indiana, chairman. "After we acquaint them of the facts we hope they will be able to take steps to remedy conditions. We have no idea of bringing them here to criticize them.

Subpoenas also went out for A. K. Oliver, W. D. Rees and J. D. Lyons, directors of the Pittsburgh Coal Co.

Coolidge Not Opposed to Coal Conference

Washington, March 20 (INS)—President Coolidge is not opposed to the suggestion of Gov. John S. Fisher of Pennsylvania for the holding of a national coal conference to rehabilitate the industry, but he is inclined to doubt the practicability of it, it was stated at the White House today.

If such a conference eventuates, the President will instruct officials of the commerce and labor departments to cooperate.

ed on Doris' appeal for clemency. Even so, Doris and her lawyers clung to the hope a decision that would save her from the gibbet would be announced. They professed faith such action would be taken as a result of the signed affidavit made by McDonald a few days ago in which he said Doris had no part in the killing, and a confession she signed in Denver, Colo., last summer was false.

J. A. Legault, one of Doris' attorneys, told the girl McDonald's published "absolution" would save her life.

"You will not be removed to Valleyfield at all," he assured her in her death cell. "When I come back to see you in a few days it will be to discuss plans for your new trial."

go after "YELLOW MASK"

Don't let that Yellowish Tinge on your Teeth Deny You Beauty; This New Way Brings Glorious Whiteness Quickly—Try It!

ALL tooth enamel is ivory white—yours, too.

That yellowness comes from a "liquid cement" in your saliva, which glues to your teeth—then hardens. Forms a glassy envelope over the enamel. Food, tobacco and coffee stain it yellow. Ordinary dentifrices give no aid—they gloss right over this "Yellow Mask."

But there is a special, non-gritty substance that banishes this beauty blight swiftly. Foremost dentists use it for cleaning difficult-to-whiten teeth and putting a high polish on them. Can't harm the most delicate enamel. This substance is known as "Tri-Calcium Phosphate." The beauty miracles it works are amazing.

Now dental science has succeeded in composing a pleasant, tasty tooth paste of this magic "Tri Calcium Phosphate," which means that the whitening powers of this material are now yours for everyday use. And that unsightly "Yellow Mask" can now be banished!

The name of this remarkable dentifrice is ORPHOS TOOTH PASTE. No tooth paste has had so great a reception. Dentists everywhere endorse it. Noted movie stars have adopted it. Women and men testify to beauty effects that are a revelation.

We want you to try this magic ORPHOS. It's different. Doesn't foam and froth, but oh! how it whitens and polishes! Get your first tube today. Don't wait. If you don't say it is the finest cleaning tooth paste you ever used, return the unused part of the tube to your druggist and get your money back.

Score Another News Beat for American

THE Boston Evening American scored another outstanding news "beat" Friday when it printed first word of the plight of the fishing schooner Morning Star with her crew of 23 local men.

The story appeared in the early editions of Friday's American. It was the "lead" story of every Boston morning paper the next day.

The American followed up its beat of Friday by being the first paper, by a solid hour, to print the news of the finding on Saturday of the Morning Star and the safety of her crew.

These were but two instances of this paper's policy of presenting the news first, accurate, and interestingly told. Other examples during the week were a one-hour beat on news of the California disaster, a beat on the surrender of Andrea DiPietro, North End banker, and exclusive publication of Herbert J. Gleason's last letter to his father, voicing a warning to youth.

EDISON POWER FOR B. & M. AND NARROW GAUGE

Contracts to supply the Boston & Maine railroad with its entire electric service and steam heating requirements for a long term of years and to supply the Boston, Revere Beach & Lynn railroad with 75 per cent of its needs after electrification have been made by the Edison Company, President Charles L. Edgar revealed today.

Coupled with this announcement to stockholders, President Edgar disclosed a considerable amount of other new business acquired during the past year, including in all 32 999 new customers, bringing the total number of metered consumers to 245,946.

Although today's report is the financial statement for 1927, the year's income account was published earlier, showing $9,247,997 available for dividends, depreciation reserve and surplus, as compared with $7,172,253 in 1926.

During the past year, five customers contracted for more than 1000 kilowatts each, these being the Weymouth Light & Power Company, Boston Ice Company, Gerrish Dredging Company, First National Stores and Hollingsworth & Vose.

A 63,000 kilowatt turbine of standard boiler pressure was put in operation, as was also a high-pressure turbine of 10,000 kilowatts' capacity, and the 110,000-volt overhead line from Weymouth to Medway, consisting of three steel towers 200 ft. in height and 208 towers 85 ft. high, was also completed.

FINDS MAN WANDERING WITH BRAIN HEMORRHAGE

An unidentified man, about 65 years old, was sent to Haymarket Relief Hospital today suffering from cerebral hemorrhage. His case was placed on the danger list.

He was found wandering aimlessly and muttering to himself on Poplar st., West End, by Sergt. Cornelius O'Leary of Joy st. police station. Unable to say who he was, police thought him an amnesia victim. He is five feet three inches tall, slightly bald and gray. He wore a blue coat and vest, brown trousers, black shoes and a shirt with red stripes. He has false teeth. He wore a ring on the third finger of his left hand.

MARRIED NOW

Angeline Vecchi of Revere, who wired dad today that she was married to youthful suitor with whom she eloped. Her father is ready to forgive the elopers and welcome them home.

Although he is ready to forgive "if all is as it should be," Theodore Vecchi of Eastern ave., Revere, asked police today to find his daughter and her sweetheart and to make an arrest "if all is not right."

Vecchi's daughter, Angeline, 18, left home Saturday, according to his statement to the police. Today he received this telegram, sent from Boston:

"We were married today. Forgive us if you can. Nils and Angie."

A checkup at Revere City Hall showed, Vecchi said, that no marriage license had been issued to his daughter, and he said he feared she was not married. But if she is, he invites both bride and groom home to live with him. The girl's mother is dead.

URGE PASSAGE OF 'TWO-SHIFT' BILL IN HOUSE

Passage of the "two shift" bill, a measure permitting employment of women after 6 o'clock in the evening in textile mills, was urged on members of the Massachusetts House of Representatives today by the New Bedford Cotton Manufacturers' Association.

Letters recommending this action were sent to representatives of the New Bedford districts. The bill was passed to a third reading in the State Senate yesterday and will soon come before the House.

The measure permits employment of women between 6 and 10 in the evening and the manufacturers declare in their letters that it does not affect the 48-hour law, but merely allows operation of two shifts when business demands.

"It is the belief of the members of the association that the Legislature should remove the discrimination against the textile industry," reads the message in part. "What is desired is simply fair play, that the textile industry be placed on the same footing as other industry.

"There is no reason for the existing discrimination. The textile industry is the safest of the major industries. Working conditions are admitted to be good. Passage of the bill will enable Massachusetts mills to get their share of the business and there will be employment for more people."

MAIL PLEDGES IN "DRAFT COOLIDGE" CAMPAIGN

Chicago, March 20 (AP)—Mayor William Hale Thompson's campaign to draft President Coolidge for another term gathered momentum when a second batch of literature designed to persuade the President to say "yes" was sent out to various parts of the nation. Thousands of cards, seeking pledges to support President Coolidge if he will enter the campaign, also have been sent out, and the "draft Coolidge" leaders hope to collect enough in a few weeks to make a deep impression.

Eight Die in Hospital Fire

Albany, N. Y., March 20 (AP)—Mrs. Mary Laroway, aged 64, one of the patients removed from the Memorial Hospital during Saturday's fire, died today, making a total of eight hospital inmates who have succumbed since the blaze.

DYNAMITE PLOT SEEN IN DAM DISASTER

Los Angeles, March 20 (AP)—The Evening Express today says that Los Angeles city authorities are carrying on their investigation of the St. Francis dam disaster on the theory that the collapse of the big buttress was caused by dynamite.

Evidence pointing to the alleged act is declared to be in the hands of District Attorney Asa Keyes.

The following statements are listed in support of the claim that the death dealing deluge in the Santa Clara river valley was the work of bomb setters:

Investigators are said to have found in the ruins a sheet of note paper found at the dam site and kept secret until today, on which was drawn a rough chart of St. Francis dam.

The notations on the chart were said to be written in the same handwriting that sketched charts found at the scene of recent dynamiting along the city aqueduct.

A short length of newly frayed rope, of the same strand, hemp and size as that used by aqueduct dynamiters in Owens valley to lower their charges into several sections of the waterway, was found at a spot where the dynamite could have been lowered into the St. Francis dam reservoir.

Coincident with the discovery of the alleged evidence, it was learned that guards had been ordered placed at every vulnerable spot in the city's domestic water supply system. A heavily armed patrol was despatched to guard that section of the aqueduct traversing Owens Valley, particularly the big reservoirs.

PLEADS NOT GUILTY TO MURDER OF WOMAN

Hartford, Ct., March 20 (AP)—Dr. Harold N. Guilfoyle, veterinarian, charged with the murder of Mrs. Clara K. Gaudet of New Haven here on January 5, pleaded not guilty before Judge L. P. Waldo Marvin in Superior Court here today. His trial is set for April 17, and he has selected trial by court which will be opened before three judges.

Dr. Guilfoyle appeared apparently fully recovered from the injury suffered when he was shot through the head the night of the murder. Charges against him allege that after shooting Mrs. Gaudet he turned the gun upon himself. His wife was in court.

"$1 CLUB" TO FINANCE CAMPAIGN FOR REED

Kansas City, March 20 (AP)—The Kansas City Star says that managers of Senator James A. Reed's presidential campaign have decided to avoid late contributions by organization of a club to obtain "$1 subscriptions."

"Because of his position as prosecutor of the Senate slush fund investigation, the Missourian has had to watch his step in the matter of campaign contributions," the Star said.

In announcing the "dollar campaign" the Star told of the recorded refusal of several offers of large contributions, including a proposal by a Chicago man "to go out and get up to one-half million dollars."

Dies With Pistol That Revived Sad Memories

New York, March 20 (INS)—Using the same pistol with which his wife killed herself several months ago, Maj. Henry Jefferson Harding, 53, and wealthy real estate dealer, sent a bullet through his heart in the washroom of a building at 233 Fifth ave. early today.

Memories which the .45 calibre army automatic pistol brought back had haunted him recently, friends told the police. He had carried the weapon through the World War, in which he won seven American citations and the French Croix de Guerre.

Early in January his young wife Jeannette killed herself with the same weapon in the Continental Hotel.

"I want to get rid of this gun," he said recently. "It brings back bad memories to me."

He had carried the pistol about with him, wrapped in a piece of paper. Early today he unwrapped it in his office, went into the washroom and shot himself.

KILLED IN LEAP AT EIFFEL TOWER

Paris, March 20 (AP)—The balloon jumper Botal in testing a new parachute jumped 380 feet to his death today from the second platform of the Eiffel Tower. Tests had been made successfully previously with sandbags but when Botal jumped the parachute failed to open. He was the second person to die in attempting a parachute jump from the tower.

Scores of tests have been made from the Eiffel Tower with dummies since the war. Most of these tests have been successful but a man has never yet succeeded in floating down from the tall tower.

Botal's attempt was a test of a modified military parachute designed to open quickly for low flying planes. The attempt which ended so disastrously was unofficial and a crowd of aviators, aviation engineers and army experts was present.

COOLIDGE ASSURED RAIL MERGER BILLS WILL PASS

Washington, March 20 (AP)—President Coolidge has recently received assurances from members of Congress that bills looking to the consolidation of railroads would soon be taken up and probably would be passed.

END OF PUBLIC OPERATION OF ROAD FORECAST

That public operation of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Company will end next year and the road be returned to private control was forecast today at a hearing before the legislative committee on street railways by Arthur G. Wadleigh, of the public trustees.

The committee was at the time receiving to advocates of a bill for state purchase of the Chelsea division of the company, and its lease to the Boston Elevated.

Wadleigh said the trustees of the Eastern had their opinion on the proposed purchase, but desired to be more or less neutral because "In a year the road will revert to its owners and therefore the directors should represent the road."

HOW REVERE SUFFERS.

Henry I. Harriman, chairman of the metropolitan planning division, favoring the bill, pointed out it is the only territory within five miles of Boston which requieres two street railway fares to reach Boston.

Revere, he said, has suffered particularly because it has a large amount of undeveloped territory held back by its unfortunate transportation system.

"It is hoped in the near future to extend the Boston Elevated terminal from Maverick sq. to Day sq. and this will accentuate the unjust situation," he said.

FIGURING THE COST.

Harriman said the book cost of the Chelsea division was slightly in excess of $2,000,000 in 1924. Under the provisions of the bill, he added, the property would be revalued by the Public Utilities Commission. Should the road fail to sell at the final figure fixed, the property would be taken by eminent domain. The lease to the "El" would be for 45 years at a rental of 5 per cent. annually, of the value of the property to the Elevated.

In 1924, it was estimated, he said, that the value of the El would be a little over $2,000,000, leaving interest on the remaining $1,000,000 to be carried by the cities benefited by the change of ownership.

MILLIONS TRAIL BONDS TO HOME OF WILL HAYS

Sullivan, Ind., March 20 (AP)—The trail of missing Continental Trading Company Liberty bonds today had led to Sullivan, Ind., the home town of Will H. Hays, former national Republican chairman and Special Investigator A. M. Fish, a representative of Senator Nye, Republican, North Dakota, of the Senate Teapot Dome investigating committee, was here to investigate.

Fisher questioned Sullivan citizens and checked at different Sullivan banks in an attempt to prove or disprove that a block of the missing Liberty bonds of the Continental Company had passed through the hands of Sullivan citizens.

Oil Probers to Bare Harding "Finances"

Washington, March 20 (AP)—Inquiry into the financial affairs of the late President Harding by the Senate Teapot Dome committee will go further than to determine whether any of the Liberty bond profits of the Continental Trading Company of Canada came into his possession.

"We shall have to determine whether there were any oil stocks or other securities that might have emanated from the oil deals into which we are inquiring," Chairman Nye said today. "We will have to go into that as well as also reopen the matter of the sales of the Marion Star."

The Star was formerly owned by the late President.

The examination of the records of the Harding estate will be made by an investigator who will be sent to Marion to confer with executors of the estate.

The North Dakota Senator said the inquiry also would go back to the time Harding became President and continue through the records to the time of his death.

Turning to the political campaign contribution phase of the inquiry, Chairman Nye said he thought the revelations to date would "make it extremely difficult to raise funds by either party as they have been raised in the past."

"If the inquiry accomplishes nothing more than that it will have done much good," the North Dakotan added. "I hope out of the whole thing can come a more clearly defined corrupt practices act so that political campaigns can be conducted within some measure of reason, both as to contributions and expenditures."

No Record of Sinclair Gift to Al Smith's Campaigns

Albany, N. Y., March 20 (AP)—Records in the New York department of state, reaching back to 1922, disclosed today that since that time Harry F. Sinclair had made no contributions to any of Governor Smith's campaign funds, as was stated in Washington yesterday by Senator Robinson, Republican, Indiana, during a discussion on the Teapot Dome oil lease.

Records in the secretary of State's office are not required by law to be kept for more than two years, and consequently those prior to 1922 were not available.

Governor Smith continued in his refusal to comment on the Sinclair case.

HEARST RIFLE SCORES HIGH THIS YEAR

Chicago, March 20—With April 15 as the "dead line," returns from the 235 R. O. T. C. teams entered in the national competition for the William Randolph Hearst rifle trophies are arriving, in large numbers at the headquarters of Col. George McD. Weeks, 6th Army Corps Headquarters, who is official referee.

Among the first to send their results of the shoot were the University of Arizona, Louisiana State University, Knox College, Stanton Military Academy, Howe School, Walla Walla high school, Louisville Male high school and the Virginia Agricultural Institute.

The firing, which is being completed in all the competing schools under the supervision of regular army instructors, is said to be unusually accurate this year.

The entry list this year is greater than ever before in history. A total of 237 institutions are represented in the competition. Which distinguishes the matches as the greatest national event ever conducted among educational institutions in this country.

A tremendous amount of interest was added to the competition as the result of the sectional trophies which are now awarded in addition to the national trophy.

It is not believed that the results will be announced by the War Department until May 1, owing to the thoroughness with which the actual targets are checked and marks submitted by each individual school verified.

NICARAGUANS IN BATTLE WITH U. S. FLIERS

Managua, Nicaragua, March 20 (AP)—Stiff resistance by rebels against two American marine planes today indicated that followers of Gen. Augustino Sandino are losing their fear of aerial attack. Previously they scurried to cover when they heard an airplane motor. Now they are attempting to bring them down with rifle and machine gun fire.

Capt. Francis E. Pierce, an observer in one of the planes, was hit in the foot during a sharp fight 20 miles southeast of Jalapa. It was estimated 50 to 200 insurgents attacked the planes. The fliers dropped bombs and used machine guns.

After Capt. Pierce was struck the plane returned to Ocotal. Several other planes were sent to the scene and with the assistance of patrols tried to cut off the rebels' escape.

Capt. Pierce was brought to Managua by a relief plane. Small holes in the ball of his foot were shattered.

This was the second attack on marine planes in two days.

New York, March 20 (AP)—The pride of the United States Merchant Marine, the Leviathan, today was believed to have hung up a new speed record "in her crossing of the English Channel from Cherbourg to Southampton. Commodore Herold Cunningham, who recently took command of the vessel, said he did not think the time unusual until he received congratulation cables from London when he docked the big ship here.

SAYS HE KILLED TEACHER FOR TWO DOLLARS

New York, March 20—For a paltry two dollars, which she refused to give him so he could get a suit of clothes out of pawn, Martin L. Miller, a young negro, shot and killed Mrs. Helen C. Kimball, attractive 25-year-old Brooklyn school teacher, in her home yesterday morning, he confessed to the police today after undergoing hours of grilling.

"She said she was sorry, she didn't have the money," Miller said. "I pulled out my gun. She screamed. 'Don't shoot!' and I let her have it—twice."

Miller, a janitor, had been admitted to the Kimball home because the night before he had been engaged by Mrs. Kimball to wash her kitchen.

The confession of Miller started police on a new inquiry into the strangling of Miss Florence Kane, whose body was found May 25, 1925, a short distance from Miller's home.

At the time of Miss Kane's death, police said, Miller was employed as a painter in a Jewish club near the Park place apartment house where Mrs. Kimball met him. The only clue to the Kane killing was a double glove, a cotton-wool glove inside a leather glove.

A number of persons who saw Miss Kane's body found time before her death said she was being followed by a negro of powerful physique and long, gorilla-like arms."

Miller was captured in a poolroom in Paterson, N. J., after a terrific battle with the police, during which he was struck on the head with a blackjack and several inches of his scalp laid open.

14 LOWELL MEN CALLED IN 'HAY CAR' INQUIRY

Andrew F. Roach, Lowell election commissioner, heided a group of 14 residents of that city to appear before a Federal Grand Jury here today in a government investigation of the shipment, in June last, of two carloads of "hay," consigned to the "City of Lowell" from Canada.

Those summoned with Roach are captain of police, David Petrie; Peter McMeniman, Frank W. Brown and John Bancroft, all employes of the Boston & Maine railroad; Edward D. Cawley, coal dealer; Thomas London, Timothy F. Crotty, Joseph A. Lemire, Samuel Cohen, Bernard F. Donlon, Matthew Brighton, Louis Trudel and Thomas E. Nagle.

The so-called "hay" case was brought to the attention of the federal authorities last week by Mayor Thomas J. Corbett of Lowell, to whom a report of the suspicious shipment had been made by Captain Petrie.

When the arrival of the cars in the local railroad yard reached the ears of the police, the contraband, said to be concealed within them, had disappeared and an investigation of its disposal has been on foot since.

Grand jury action was taken following a personal visit to Lowell authorities last week by Mayor Thomas J. Corbett of Lowell, to whom a report of the suspicious shipment had been made by Captain Petrie.

KELLY DRAMA PRESENTS FINE ACTING

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

O" course, women are the dramatists' most fruitful objects, and if you follow the George Kelly school of dramatic connotation you are bound to discover inexplicable ladies wandering through the evening's entertainment.

Judith Anderson

It was Judith Anderson, bor rowed from David Belasco for the occasion, who supplied the pathological enigma at the Shubert last evening in a play called "Behold the Bridegroom." If the acts of the theater rested soley upon the quality of acting, Miss Anderson not only would have made a major contribution to her actor but "Behold the Bridegroom" might possibly take its place as this season's oddest and most profitable venture.

Human emotions are the theater's imperious call to the grasping theatergoer. In these extremely personal items Miss Anderson left nothing to be desired—or even expected. She filled all requirements and presented, in her own way, a full measure devotion to her author.

Her emotions were multiple they ran the whole range of feminine mental agitation. She enjoyed or, perhaps, was tortured by passions over which she had no control. She had no capacity for love, though she imagined that she was the vital message in Kelly's salon. Miss Anderson not only caught the dramatist's view of life but enlarged upon it. She made it seem real, though the expected lessons appeared generally unreasonable.

It might be observed that Kelly, like Eugene O'Neil, makes his heroines quite creatures. They are never normal women. In Behold, the Bridegroom," he invests his principal character with traits and impulses difficult to describe. In those days of sophistication and general sufferage, roled elevation, shrinking from the best hotels and a general knowledge of what keeps the race alive, one may honestly wonder why a girl like Antionette Lyle (Miss Anderson) should die of an acquired love; pine away and wither for a man she had seen only for 25 minutes in the first act. But that is Kelly's drama and it turned out to be mighty interesting, if not convincing.

In Miss Anderson's support were Mary Hall, Margaret Wycherly, Minister Richard Gordon, for whom she passed little direction and with the fact that he wore gray trousers with a dark business coat, and Jean Dixon, who, before the play, young woman we have seen on the stage, understood and expressed the difference of engaging in one cocktail too many. Taken all and given an excellent example of how mawkish comedy can be spoiled by correct acting. Miss Hall sedately patted the rich fur to a degree in great distress.

"Behold the Bridegroom" makes its own appeal to serious minded playgoers. It is a case or study of the feminine mind freed from the usual restrictions. Whether you approve or not, Miss Anderson relates splendidly, gorgeously and unconcernedly, to the feral moment.

"JAZZ SINGER" REMAINS AT MODERN, BEACON

Record attendance at the Modern and Beacon is making a hit of Al Jolson's "The Jazz singer," now in it's fifth week at the Twin Houses.

Jolson seems present, not only in body but in voice and personality. During the presentation he sings six of his famous songs "Toot, Toot, Tootsie," "Dirty Hands, Dirty Face," "My Mammy," "Sonny Boy," "Mother o' Mine," as well as "Kol Nidre."

SIMMONS URGES LONDON AND NEW YORK UNITE

London, March 20 (AP)—Close cooperation and harmony between New York and London in the conduct of their international financial affairs are essential if sound standards of foreign borrowing and safe, cautious foreign investment are to be maintained in the opinion of S. H. H. Simmons president of the New York Stock Exchange

SOPRANO GIVES PLEASING SONG

By MOSES SMITH

Although Marguerite Porter has made several professional appearances here previously, she gave her first complete song recital at Jordan Hall, last evening, before a large and cordial audience

One hearing this soprano for the first time was impressed by the beauty of her voice, with its potentialities for dramatic singing, and with its massive range. She can at times summon tones of power alongside light tones of velvety texture.

Her training has thus far been, apparently, unfinished. The principal difficulty would seem to be that there has not been enough of it. For, although Miss Porter was singing a program containing material of many styles and nationalities she was given no concrete evidence that she has advanced beyond the student stage.

Singing for her remains still production of tones and until she gets beyond this, so that voice placement is taken for granted, she cannot expect to compete with mature artists. The singer must feel the lyricism of song intuitively, and must also feel the drama or atmosphere of the text more than Miss Porter did last night. It is her duty to begin to make music. And it is worth the effort for her, since she is, as we have said, well endowed

SPRING FLOWER SHOW OPENS IN HUB TODAY

Boston's annual Spring Flower Show was inaugurated in today when the doors of Horticultural Hall were thrown open to the public.

The exhibition presented under the direction of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society includes beautiful displays of all the spring plants, bulbs and flowers.

An exhibit of much educational value, illustrating what can be done in decorating rooms of limited size and at most moderate expense is arranged on the mezzanine floor by members of many of the Federated Garden clubs including the Wayland Garden club, Marlboro Garden club, Peabody Garden club and Marthas Vineyard Garden club.

The 1928 show has been extended to five days instead of four as in previous years.

ODALI CARENO MAKES HIT AT KEITH'S THEATER

Odali Careno was at B F Keith's last evening and the applause was poured beyond words. To deal was held on an ovation. Marjorie Mars Scott was at the piano.

Her program opened to a medley Ave Maria of Latin, the Aria from Saint-Saens' opera "Samson and Delilah," "Gypsy Songs" and "Paola" in Spanish. For encores the diva sang "For You Only" and a French song, "Three Dolls."

Harry Norwood and Alpha Hall in a skit, "And Now Introduce Him," created gales of laughter. Norwood, as "Chalsey," was the most self possessed man in the universe.

ans and Democrats do not know what an oligarchy is.

Corrupt corporation oligarchies rule the republic, say the Socialists. It is just a two-party capitalistic machine. No favorites, oil or no oil, bonds or no bonds, one or the other half of the Republican-Democratic "machine of capitalism" will win next fall.

The earth has not settled down yet, in spite of the fact that science proves it to be more than a thousand million years old. In far away Java volcanoes below the water throw up steam and lava, building new islands, and an earthquake shakes trees and houses in the Adirondacks, and other northeastern parts of New York State.

The British cannot make up their minds about a new prayer-book. The bishops wrote one. The Lords approved, and His Majesty was said to approve, but the House of Commons threw it out. What does a House of Commons know about a prayer-book? A second new book is written, with much earnest prayer, before and during the process. But the Commons will undoubtedly reject that also.

An old plan that settled genuine and spocryphal books at the Bible might be tried. The various books were left by themselves on the floor. Those that miraculously jumped upon the altar were declared genuine, the others not. But in these skeptical, modernist days, the prayer books might not jump. Once a miracle happened, whenever it was needed. Now it happens rarely.

'JUST FANCY' IS HIT AT WILBUR

"Just Fancy," Joseph Santley's new entertainment at the Wilbur, is hailed as "a merry musical comedy." The claim is refreshingly modest. Many musical comedies seen in town this season have been merry, but none have been so charming.

It is based on A. E. Thomas' "Just Suppose," a quaint piece in which H. R. H. the Prince of Wales edwards Edward VII, is figured as a jolly haired young fellow in love with a New York girl of the 1860's. All very natural but all very delightful and just Joseph Santley peasant pair, Joe Santley and Dolores Costello.

Of course the new piece must have music. Joseph Meyer and Phil Charig have attended to the necessary, and if their tunes are not a distinction or inclined to be original, they're popular and very tuneful. Yip Ribber, world-renowned manager, is quite his old self. But unit is hardly correct, the great Hitchy" can never be "old." Ditto Mrs. Thomas Wilfen, venerable but ever vital.

And Eric Blore, whose excellence is such that he may make of the three, wheeziest stage character the Irish Peer, Lord Aylesham, is so mighty amusing, that he seems to be new all over again. Hitchcock and Blore together, by the way, constitute a comedy team that would make a fortune if all man Gobbo and Bassanio say.

And Eric Blore, whose excellence is such that he may make of the three, wheezi

Great Story on Life; Gripping as a Novel; Fascinating as a Movie

CHAPTER 31

OUR nervous system is co ed der; it is built around a ne It has plenty of reflex arcs, but it is surmounted by a brain whose big business is to learn and to profit by experience. The baby's spinal cord is largely organized at birth but its big brain is a clean sla'e There is nothing known it cannot learn. With min. plastic behavior reaches its highest point.

We do not INHERIT instincts but an instinctive mode of vegeta tive and reproductive reactions also an instinctive activity which by the nature of the stimulus says "yes" or "no," a positive or a negative response. With such activity, we can learn to walk and pud the cat's tail; we can form habits. We bump our head against the table; our next response to table is CONDITIONED. We pull the strong cat's tail; our habit of response to cats tails is conditioned. All our reasonses are conditioned. That is the way we learn to behave. We do not receive instincts; we on, ac quire habits. If we get set in them, we can forget our brains and live like ants.

Add it up: INSTINCTS ARE INHERITED HABITS. Have we more than a chimpansee? We cannot say. But we can say that both of us have enough to start out in life; if not, we are defective and do not go far. We can also say that our inheritance of reflex arcs exceeds that of the chimpansee by several ounces of neurons. As a consequence, we have more nervous machinery in general, more neurons to load, more paths to carry the load.

* * * * * *

BUT the fundamental difference between man and chimpansee's inheritance is in parents. Once a chimpanzee, always a chimpanzee; but a man may become a skunk or a saint. Think of all the kinds of people you know!

Man's inherited habit-to-live can be modified into thousands of ways of living. We do not inherit habits of shaving, wearing kimonos, three meals a day, pipe lines, skyscrapers, abstinence of pork, for waves, faith in Santa Claus or belief in higher education for women. We do inherit parents who do not want us to disgrace them and who do their best to bring us up in the way we ought to go.

Which means that human inheritance varies from age to age and cradle to cradle. Little the newborn cares about a silver spoon in his mouth—he inherited the habit of responding to an empty stomach; and whether the roof over his head is copper or thatch—he inherited the habit of craving in out of the wet.

TO describe human adjustments in terms of instincts or analyze specific human behavior—or our own consciousness—into instinctive acts, is to star the mud. Human culture is the accumulated responses of the man-animal to his man-made environment. It accumulates, it varies, how so ever can and does talk this seems a handicap at times but in the long run it has had enormous consequences. Without speech and an organized tool of exchanging, acquiring, and transmitting experience, human culture is impossible.

Life learns. An ameba probably learns new tricks not inherent in the original protoplasm. Man also must learn to experience. Isn't it you tell me "to write a solid" or "that's a bad boy." It saves time. It is the condensed assemblage of others' experiences in the form of objects and descriptions which makes human culture what it is and man's birthright today what it is.

An engineer will build an airplane in less time than it took him to learn to drive his first nail. But in an entire lifetime he could not also possible the master knowledge of engineering without the benefit of centuries of knowledge, learn how to make nails.

We learn by participating; but we do not learn all of the things we participate in well the first time. We took our first lesson in doing as a baby when we banged the table on the side of the crib. Later, stimuli of nails, hammers, soft pine, an environment holding other stimuli to activity; countless reflex arcs, some already learned in response to such stimuli though unaided, probably, but the will is finally driven. And more nails, and more, until finally the carpenter drives nails from force of habit like an instinct.

WE LEARN to skate in summer and to swim in winter, said James. He meant that our gradually rising curve of learning resumes a constant slope for a while. During summer we consolidate all that we learned during winter. With the next winter we start from a new level. It is even more true that we learn both to skate and swim when we learn to a nile, just as we have made progress in learning English. But to learn Chinese, or to skate, or to dive on our toes, we must start early, our muscles soon get set in their ways.

It is the first walk that is the hardest. The steps we acquire later in life are mere child's play compared with the first step the child learns to make. Balancing the body on one foot on a wire tops is only possible because we learned first to balance the body on a ball a half inch in diameter. We speak of such complex acts as tennis, typewriting, piano playing, etc. They are complex, but the complex and difficult part was learned by the time we could walk across the room and put a finger in the cat's eye.

Do we learn these acts, or are they innate responses that appear in due time? We know that the newborn's legs are not only weak, but are not yet shaped for an upright act, and that its spine has not yet taken on human curves. Head and spine grow human several years sooner before they are entirely human in character. But

JOE CROSBY BACK AT HARVARD

Coach Arnie Horween Learns Crack Back Will Play Football Next Fall

By TED LYNCH

Reports of the first spring football practice at Harvard seem to give credit to the large turnout as the main cause of the smile which Arnold Horween, head mentor extraordinary, carries around Harvard sq. today. True as this may seem, the real incentive which causes the broad grin is the appearance of Horween's "one-man backfield" in football togs.

For Jamaica Plain Joe Crosby has definitely decided to return to Harvard next fall and incidentally close his football days in real Crosby fashion instead of sitting on the bench an invalid as was his case last fall.

T. Arnold Horween has always prized Crosby as his big man on the eleven. Ever since the days when Crosby emerged his first varsity to pierce the Yale line, the Chicagoan has been Coach Horween's main wedge in his set-up running attack. He starred through in grand fashion and last year was looked up to by everyone and then the club went to pieces.

ONLY WEIGHS 158 POUNDS

The former Boston Latin boy has been the lightweight of every Crimson backfield quartet he has played with. The Horween managerial force has forever given to the press statistics on Crosby which called for his weighing something like 176 pounds. In reality Crosby's meagre 158 football pounds have been seen in the wear and tear of the Crimson offensive for two years now.

The appearance of Crosby at double skin may cause Coach Horween to do considerable shifting before he can decide upon his first string backfield next fall. Crosby a sure shot for his berth, Tommy Whitehead or both push in look good for the quarterback berth.

That gives two berths open to Carl Art French, Wally Harper, Dave Garrard, Ben Ticknor, Ed Art Guy Holbrook, Ben Ticknor, Ed Art Hurley. From the first three is believed that Fielding Italian, Dave Garrard, in the last few games of the season Horween will have his hands full trying to keep him out of that first lineup.

BATCHELDER A FIND

This Batchelder from the freshman team is expected to even outdistance the heights made by George Owen. He played great football for Eddie Casey last year and it is no fumble to say that Horween has many things planned for the Milton boy.

This leaves Captain Art French out in the open air and the chances are that the Winchester boy, be cause of his brittle frame, will be leader of the "shock" backfield quartet, composed of Wally Harper, Elliott Putnam, Guy Holbrook and himself.

Ben Ticknor, powerful freshman back, will probably be found at center next fall. Center Coach Eddy Clark claims first mortgage on the yearling and has been converting him into a pivot ever since the football season ended last June.

Harvard's main work in the coming weeks is to develop considerable line material. With such competent coaches as Charley Hubbard and John Donovan assisting him with the line, Horween optimistically feels that considerable line material will be unearthed.

Harvard's spring practice will continue for three weeks, starting next week. One of many 10 the fates of the weather may Horween has planned several scrimmages which will make the work as enjoyable as possible.

Dan MacFayden Ace of Red Sox Pitchers

By JOE CASHMAN

Avonpark, Fla., March 20—The rarest feat in baseball, that of jumping direct from a high school pitching mound into a conspicuous place among major leaguers, has been accomplished by a Greater Boston boy.

Danny MacFayden, of Somerville, the slim, bespectacled youth who a few years back, was the peer of all Hub school boy flingers, now stands out as the logical selection for the honor of pitching the opening game of the season against Washington, three weeks from today.

He has been the most consistent and effective of the score of Fenway tossers all spring as there doesn't appear a chance of Manager Miller selecting anybody else for opening day in the capital.

HE'S A BUDDING STAR

Every team he has faced has been unanimous in the opinion that the Somerville boy is on his way to stardom and not without cause.

He has looked great in every start and is insured of regular assignments throughout the season, whether he opens or not.

And if he continues to deliver the brand of ball he has to date the Sox can be assured of victory about as often as Jimmy works.

This will be just about the best news that the fans have had since Joe Cashman from the camp of either Hub team the while he knows, for the quiet, modest boy-wonder has been a perfect sportsman from the day his name broke into print, and Greater Boston fans have been rooting for him to make good ever since he broke in the game.

MacFayden's rise has been phenomenal. When he joined the Sox in August, 1926, after four years of high school and one season at Hebron Academy, it was predicted that his lack of experience and lack of weight, he tipped the scales at only 145, would prevent him from making the grade until after he had spent a few years in the minors.

Those who so predicted, and they constituted the big majority of the fans and critics, had good reasons for thinking as they did, for the handicaps that Danny started under are not often overcome in big league baseball.

But the Somerville boy had something that everybody overlooked beans. He not only had them, but what is more important, used them. With his result that today he is in a position to laugh at those who opined that he would fail.

IMPROVED DELIVERY

Right at the start he employed his grey matter, which probably accounts for his class today. Manager Foh, who was then directing the destinies of the Sox, after watching him finish up a few games, decided that he ought to change his style of pitching.

He spent all this past winter trying to increase his percentage and succeeded to the extent of 20 pounds reporting at 165.

His work this spring shows that he was absolutely correct when he decided that weight was the only thing that stood between him and stardom.

He has no more stuff than ever, though his curves and mixes it up better as a result of Carrigan's instructions. But he is so much stronger than he now shines where heretofore, he was only mediocre.

He refuses to comment on his success this spring other than to say that Bill Carrigan is the greatest manager in the world and that any improvement he may be showing is entirely due to Bill.

That is true, but only partly so. There are more experienced pitchers in camp with as much natural ability and far better physiques and they have the advantage of the wonderful coaching.

SARAZEN HAS ONE-STROKE LEAD

Miami Beach, Fla., March 20 (AP)—Gene Sarazen of New York continued a jump ahead of the field at the end of the third round in the $15,000 LaGorcia open golf tournament today.

The former national open and P. G. A. champion, who has won the biggest money in Florida this year, shot 36—36—70 for a 54-hole total of 209, one stroke better than his nearest competitor, Leo Diegel of Pasadena, Cal. Next in order followed Al Espinosa, Tom Kerrigan, Jr., Jimmy Parker and Willie Hunter, who finished the round with 71.

Johnny Farrell and Tom Kerr each put one above par for a 36 and a total score of 211.

Henry Cluci of New York, who was hurt in fourth place when play started today, took five strokes over par this morning, seemingly to go well outside the big money class with a 54 hole total of 218.

George Voigt, of Washington was in the van of the amateurs with 225.

DEMANDS SUGGS POST FORFEIT

The Suffolk A. A. lost thousands of dollars when a severely cut lip kept King Solomon of Panama from fighting Ernie Schaaf, but Tom Goodwin, matchmaker for the club, is now turning his attention to the New England featherweight battle between Sammy Fuller of the North End and Cliff Suggs of New Bedford, which will be staged in the Arena next Monday night.

It was originally slated to be a great revival but the feeling between the camp of Fuller and the camp of Suggs is very strained. Dave Lourie, manager of Suggs has made insinuations recently similar with Fuller and his North End admirers by preventing from the house-tops that Fuller was investing excuses to keep from fighting Suggs, when the whole North End knew that Fuller was laid up with a sprained wrist, boils, tennis elbow, housemaid's knee and what not.

Lumiansky has insisted that Fuller post $500 with the Boxing Commission to weigh 128 pounds next Monday, and Fuller has posted that amount. Today, Jim Valenti, manager of Fuller, will go before the Commission and insist that Suggs place the same amount of forfeit. Both managers insist that if either man is as much as eight ounces over weight, that fighter can not go through on next Monday, the forfeit money will be taken.

Tom Goodwin has clinched an eight round semifinal match between Jimmy Robertson, Lynn lightweight star, and Jimmy Mendes of New Bedford, New Bedford light heavyweight.

RACE TRACK OWNER DIES

New York, March 20 (AP)—L. A. Cassidy, former general manager of the Miami (Fla.) and Tanforan (Cal.) race tracks and a prominent turf figure for many years, died today shortly after suffering a heart attack while watching the thoroughbreds work out at Belmont Park.

Cassidy died at the home of Max Hirsch, well-known trainer, whose horses he had been looking over at the track.

The veteran turfman was 51 years old and had long been identified with racing development at home and abroad. He was in England last year supervising construction of a new track just outside of London and was to have returned this spring to put it in operation.

Until state betting laws put an end to racing in Florida, Cassidy was one of the most widely known figures in the sport. He was manager of the Miami Jockey Club.

Mountain Courses Hard Says Mrs. Horn

The most startling difference in the [illegible] Southern California is their new appearance. Many trees seem unsettled, in the rough, so to speak. There are spots which have been left untouched.

Naturally, owing to climatic conditions, there are few sturdy trees such as the oak, the maple, and hickory, with which we are familiar. For many of these trees only a few decades ago were planted. The others are mostly evergreens which have been used chiefly for decorative purposes.

The soil in Southern California is [illegible] and preparing a soil [illegible] is a [illegible] task. Water does not soak in as quickly, and although the porters are well drained [illegible] a heavy rain [illegible] sacks.

On the newer courses they are following more closely to the newer architecture which [illegible] are rebuilding many of the courses. White beach sand fills all of them and explosion shots are numerous.

This is my first experience in playing in a mountainous territory. Let me say [illegible] are most deceiving. What looms to me to be a mashie shot is more likely a wood.

With the hills as a background things appear so close. Thus it would be hard for one to choose from a flat course to a hilly one and play intelligent golf.

It may be of interest to hear that California fairways are green the year round. Hills and valleys receive from the sea keeps them in order during the winter months, while constant irrigation throughout the entire night is required for the remainder of the year. California boasts [illegible] other tracks of 36-golfing [illegible] the year [illegible]. I would add that if it does not rain, but that is very unusual.

Kerchief necklines, extremely graceful waistlaments, tiered ruffles, shirring, handkerchief and many other variations of such confusion styles and seasons reflect that current fashions definitely favor flattering details rather than severe masculinity.

"You Said It, Marceline!"

By MARCELINE D'ALROY

LOVE is a TRAP
With its little door ever
Invitingly AJAR. Or Maybe MARRIAGE is the
Trap, and love is the
Little bit of BAIT nicing
Just in the CAGE.
Most men feel too hait
Very TEMPTING, and many
Rush in without thinking.
WISE men hesitate, but——
What's the USE?
That bait has got man
By the NOSE. The
ESCAPES one day he surely
Comes back like JONAH
He is DOOMED. None men
DRAG the bait out of the Cage and GOBBLE it up, but
Taken under those CONDITIONS
It has been known to Provoke ACUTE indigestion.
Others BUY, get drawn into
The cage and, finally settle
Down and call the trap HOME.
Some who get in TRY to Get out again. Why fight
Such long ODDS? The tempting
Title BAIT is provided by Nature. The real trap—CONVENTION.

A "PECK" OF MEDICINE DID NO GOOD

But ALL-BRAN brought natural relief

Read what Kellogg's ALL-BRAN did for Mr. Hamilton—a chronic sufferer from constipation.

"I am 58 years old and truly believe I have taken a peck of medicine during a good many dozens, for constipation, and all I got was temporary relief. Now since I began taking your ALL-BRAN I have had a bowel movement (with a vigorous exercising, and that was my fault) every day. From a grateful user of your ALL-BRAN"

W. N. HAMILTON, Export, Penna.

Constipation causes headaches, blotched skins, sleeplessness, spots before the eyes. It is father of more than forty serious diseases.

Guard against it. ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation. Two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal. Doctors recommend Kellogg's because it is 100% bran. Because it is much more effective than part-bran products could possibly be.

A health cereal too! Serve with milk or cream—and add fruits or honey. Use in cooking. Recipes on every package. Sold by all grocers. Served everywhere. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Chic Spring Garb

While some Parisian contouriers evidence the demand for capes with a dark red, almost purplish, creation, America offers this intriguing gesture for Spring. The knitted jumper with tailored touches matches the cape and contrasts with a pleated silk crepe skirt in tones of beige, green or blue.

Three-Minute Trips

By TEMPLE MANNING

SPINSTERHOOD is an unheard-of condition in India. Marriage is considered a sacred duty and must be entered into by every man and woman. If, however, for some reason or other, a woman passes the age of discretion without receiving a proposal of marriage, something must be done. It would be contrary to all the customs and traditions of India to die unmarried. Therefore she announces her betrothal to a tree!

The marriage is celebrated as if it were a human being. All the prescribed rites and ceremonies are performed and caste dinners are held. And now the "wife" is free from all reproach. She is a married woman for the rest of them.

But not only do the women marry trees. Often men do so, too. A common reason for this is a strange superstitious fear. Should a man have been married twice and lost by death both wives, he fears to marry a third time, for she, too, may die. Therefore he goes through all the ceremonies necessary to marriage. Then he cuts down the tree and mourns it as if it were indeed a wife. Then he may safely marry the woman of his choice, for he knows that she is now immune from all evil influence.

Often times couples are selected for the tree wife or husband. A good, a lovely Tamron, a sensible one have been said. There are hundreds of records of this sort of marriage in India and it certainly has its advantages in that it frees a woman from that miserable dread of reproach that her caste would bring upon her because of her spinsterhood.

PAIN is a teacher and I have learned much of the lore that I else had spurned. I have learned something all hearts should know; pity always for each brother's woe. I can be cruel and yet be kind for it opens eyes that were once so I, avoiding tears for what's grief, the deed or the word that can bring relief. Patience and purity follow pain, learn, then, to count it not loss, but gain!

MARCH IS BRINGING SPRING

GOOD DAYS are coming and you are thinking of long drives in the country, health giving walks, and the great outdoors. You'll need an eye lotion which cleans, refreshes and strengthens the eyes priced at $1.00 a bottle. It is harmless and you'll be surprised at the results.

MARCH MEANS that Winter has played havoc with your hair. Brighten it up with a lotion that will not disturb your wave but will stimulate growth, priced at $1.50 a bottle.

IF YOUR stocking budget is rather limited and you want a pair of stockings to go with every dress for Spring I can tell you where there are some rayon stockings, priced at $1.00 that are fashioned, look exactly like silk and wear better.

THE THING that ... about the dresses I saw in a certain shop is that they have very youthful lines, yet they come in all sizes. They are colorful and smart yet well made and they cost only $4.95, a price well within the reach of your budget. Do you wish to know where I saw these dresses? If so check this column.

IS IT TRUE that if you tell a woman a secret it's a secret no longer. It hardly seems so yet I think you'll all want to share in a secret I know. It concerns beauty! Write for further information.

THE MODERN WOMAN has so many important things to do that she cannot find time to mend stockings. Sheer chiffon hose should be her choice and she'll delight in a place where she can get free mending service with stockings she buys there or other stockings purchased elsewhere, mended at a very small charge.

ATTRACTIVE in a brass container is a deodorizer for under the arms in compact powder form priced at $1.50 or 10c extra for mailing.

CONSTANTLY CHANGING weather and the modern system of heating doesn't help your skin one bit even if it is naturally oily and white. A tissue cream made of pure ingredients is put up by a reputable shop's own chemists to take care of this condition.

I'M NOT "forever blowing bubbles," but I am "forever shopping" and I'll be glad to help you when I can. Check this column, enclose a 2c stamp with your name and address and I'll send you information about it.

Martha Lee's Radio Chat About Some Lenten Dishes

Martha Lee Radio Chat as broadcast from Station WEEI.

THE lack of meat in the diet makes room for most satisfying substitutes.

In our ordinary diet, meats undoubtedly provide a certain, positive and immutable, whatever the vegetarian may say in support of his chosen diet. The Lenten season is a real test of the home-makers ingenuity in providing for the family table meat substitutes which will not only appeal to the capricious taste of the spring season, but also be in the proper balance in the menu.

Martha Lee.

Instead of the dull refrain of fish, eggs, cheese and vegetables, offered without imagination, the skillful home cook proves every week by her French toast these foods may be served delectably, amply, tastily and cheaply. Delicious combinations and seldom eaten foods, and can be found amazingly cheap into the bargain. Her substitute dishes are contrived of interesting combinations, well cooked and made to look as inviting as can be.

Correct Manners Explained

By MRS CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN.

1. Is it necessary for a girl who has asked a boy to a dance, to pay for him?

2. Is a white georgette dress with short sleeves considered appropriate for informal evening wear?

3. Should a girl wait for her escort to seat her at dinner even though she is quite sure he won't?

4. Would you consider this writing paper in good taste?

5. Is it necessary for a girl to remove her glove when shaking hands with an older woman on the street?

6. When promising a person to visit her soon, does one answer, "I will for sure," or "I will soon"?

A PUZZLED READER.

WHEN a girl asks a boy to accompany her to a dance, she should take as her hostess responsibility all the details that go with that invitation. If there are tickets to buy, she should buy them.

2. It is a bit difficult to answer this question without knowing more of the mode of the dress and the degree of the formality of the occasion to which it is to be worn. Generally speaking, it would seem to be more of an informal frock than formal.

3. A well-bred girl would naturally expect to have her escort pull out her chair and help her to be seated, and so it is natural for her to think that he will do this. However, if from past experience she has found out that he does not know that this detail is expected of him, it does seem rather futile for her to wait for this galant attention. If she is a wise girl she will sometimes bring this detail into the conversation—most casually, of course, and seeming to have no "interior motive."

4. To my taste buff, especially a buff that borders so nearly on yellow, is not an attractive shade for writing paper. However, I am one of those conventional people who must like a white or occasionally very light gray, or very light blue paper better than any other shade. Your handwriting and your arrangement spacing and your excellent sense of letter-form deserve a splendid color paper background. Why not try an oyster-white, or a very light gray?

5. No.

6. In this case, "I will, thank you," probably would convey her meaning best. "I will" is correct for a promise. However, as a matter of fact, "I shall," is also correct for that means simply futurity.

You Meet Septics in the movies!

There is a certain fastidiousness which habits of cleanliness cannot achieve alone. The person you sometimes suspect of carelessness may have bathed the hour.

If you are a septic, soap and water will not solve the difficulty. Nor will any refreshant counteract unpleasant vaporings of the body at the breast for any length of time.

Nobody is septic by nature. It is a condition anyone can correct. Just a few grains are sufficient to take the taint out of perspiration, and render one's breath as pure as can be. And this perfect personal cleanliness made permanent. Ask any doctor—or nurse about calcium.

You may not know whether you are a septic. Try some calcium wafers, and see. If there is any ailment matter in the system, everything will speedily be sweet and clean. You also will be less acrid. Calcium corrects sweet brightens eyes and whitens teeth. And you will never need another harsh cathartic from the time you have learned to prevent over semi-constipation by an occasionally taking a tiny cal cium tablet.

A five-day test will prove to you very conclusively the system's need for calcium and the manifold benefit from these little wafers. Your druggist has them—the test size for pocket is 10c. Or the family size 50c.

AVOID UGLY PIMPLES

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; know them by their olive color. Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints and Olive Tablets are the harmlessly effective results. Take nine for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c, 30c, 60c.

YOUR SON'S VOCATION

By L. Lamar Matthews.

WITHIN the last two months thousands of "Freshmen" have entered the various colleges over the country. The main idea in sending a boy to college is to prepare him for the profession of his choice. But the majority of the boys are still at sea as to their own life work. They are asking "What course shall I take?" and echo answers "What?"

If your son has one outstanding talent and knows definitely what he wants to do when he finishes school he is lucky and so are you.

In almost any college course the first two years are devoted largely to academic subjects—studies that acquaint students with facts that educated people know. It is during the last two years that most of the training for a vocation comes. If he can make up his mind before his Junior year he is to be congratulated.

It was Dr. John Dewey who said: "The dominant vocation of all human beings at all times is living—intellectual and moral growth. To pre-determine some future occupation for which education is to be a strict preparation is to injure the possibilities of present development and thereby reduce the adequacy of preparation for future right employment."

Which is just another way of saying that boys and girls who learn as much as they can of different subjects are better able to qualify for a vocation than those who confine their studies to that one particular line of work.

In order to be successful a man must do the sort of work that he wants to do. There are some parents who attempt to trust their own ambitions and desires upon their children. Others are willing for the children to choose their own vocations, but are discouraged and impatient when the years go by and still no choice has been made.

To choose a vocation that calls for greater intelligence than the individual possesses is a tragedy—a common one. To select a vocation that is intellectually beneath the worker is a mistake.

There are schools that give interesting tests in order to enable students to find out what occupation they are best suited to enter.

Many firms have a personnel expert who possesses uncanny powers of judging ability. If it is possible to secure such advice for your boy from any institution or individual it is well to take advantage of the service.

The dear old lady was late at church and entered just as the congregation was rising to sing.

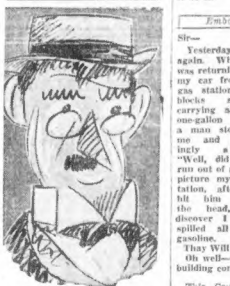
MR. FRISBY ANNOUNCES SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY



Wholeyoks Doakes, eminent scientist, who has not denied Frisby theory.

WASHINGTON — Congressman Frisby today hurled a defy that shook the very foundations of modern geography.

Arising on a matter of personal privilege, Congressman Frisby read his 10,000-word paper advancing the theory that the world is flat instead of round. He also branded the theory that the world revolves as "stuff and nonsense."

Frisby's declaration was interpreted to be a strong bid for the Zion City vote.

"I base my contention," declared the Congressman-at-Large, "on the following experiment:

"I took an ordinary field plow and stuck its nose in the ground.

"The next morning, and for several days subsequent, I made notes and observations. The plow remained just as I left it.

"Now if the world is round and revolves, it is obvious that the earth's motion, against the plowshare, would have automatically cut a furrow around the globe.

"No such thing happened. Consequently it is plain to any thinking person that the world is flat, I might add, stationary."

"Led by Mr. Kidder, their director, members of the choir assembled on the beach in bathing suits and rehearsed for an hour. Rev. Graham predicted a great stimulus in church music interest as a result of the comfort in which the choir could practice."—News item.

And even a greater stimulus to church interest might result if the choir were bathing suits on Sunday morning.

It's only a matter of time before the dignity of the church organ is abandoned in recognition of the ukulele.

ADAM SCOFFLAW'S JOURNAL

This evening, whilst gutting little Adam did bolt his food and wrangle his beefsteak and lick of his knife, so that his mother did leave the table and says she will not return lest I spank the sprig. So I take the voncker to his nedchamber, and flay him with my necktie, bed, chair, and it did near crack my heart to do it.

Embarrassing Moments

Sir—

Yesterday I ran out of gasoline again. When I was returning to my car from a gas station six blocks away, carrying a red one-gallon can, a man stopped me and smilingly said: "Well, did you run out of gas?" I picture my agitation, after I hit him over the head, to discover I had spilled all my gasoline.

When Pain Comes

Two hours after eating

What many people call indigestion very often means excess acid in the stomach. The stomach nerves have been over-stimulated, and food sours. The corrective is an alkali, which neutralizes acids instantly. And the best alkali known to medical science is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained the standard with physicians in the 59 years since its invention.

One spoonful of this harmless, tasteless alkali in water will neutralize instantly many times as much acid, and the symptoms disappear at once. You will never use crude methods when once you learn the efficiency of this. Go get a small bottle to try.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids, 25c and 50c a bottle—any druggists.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

HERBERTS NIGHT AT ARENA

Old Bruin Will Get Rousing Reception When He Makes Bow as Maple Leaf Tonight

By BILL GRIMES

As this will be "Jimmie Herberts' Night" at the Boston Arena, another capacity crowd will turn out to pay tribute to their old favorite and, incidently, watch the Bruins and the Maple Leafs go through the motions of the final game of the regular season.

Jimmie Herberts was one of the original Bruins and he was one of the most popular players that ever wore a Boston uniform. For three and a half seasons he fought insensantly for the Bruins and he and for that matter still is, one of the leading scorers in the N. H. L.

REAL CREDIT TO GAME

A couple of months ago Manager Conn Smythe sent out a call for help. The Maple Leafs were floundering around at the bottom of the Canadian section and badly in need of replacements. Jimmie was sold to Toronto, and Boston lost the best center ice player that was ever on the Bruins' payroll.

Herberts is the type of center ice man feared by all defense players. Knowing no fear, Herberts crashes through a defense with a recklessness seldom seen in hockey. He can give and take bumps with the toughest in the league and is always in "there" regardless of the physical condition, fighting to win and never complaining.

Although he has been away from here for over two months, he has not been forgotten by his many friends, a few of whom have banded together to present him with a little token in appreciation of his efforts to put the Hub on the hockey map.

HERBERTS THE HEADLINER

As the Bruins have captured the "boy" position in the American Division and the Maple Leafs are out of the Canadian play-offs, there is nothing at stake as far as the actual game is concerned. So Herberts will be the headliner and the fans can only upon their favorite to "do his stuff" this evening.

The second and third stringers of the Bruins will do most of the playing against the Maple Leafs, as the regulars are entitled to a rest after the long hard schedule.

"WELCOME BACK JIM!"

A REGULAR FELLOW COMES HOME
Again when Sailor Jimmy Herberts plays center for the Toronto Maple Leafs against the Bruins at the Arena tonight.

GANSON IN TRIM FOR ODELL

Jack Ganson, Lithuanian matman has wrestled five matches in the last six days at some club or benefit, and believes that he could get no better training for his finish match with Jack Odell at the Grand Opera House Thursday night.

Odell is training hard for this match, as this will be his first bout where he has met a man that he didn't outweigh by many pounds.

Harry Coleman, Jewish Hercules, will be the next man to try and stop Dynamite Gus Sonnenberg. Coleman is a tough wrestler, with plenty of strength and courage to back it up. He should be able to make the going tough for Gus.

Martin Plestina, Turman of the mat, has been matched to meet Alexander Garkawenko in a thirty minute limit match. These two giants should furnish plenty of thrills for the thirty minutes in which they have to go to win a fall.

Charlie Hansen, Swedish star, has been paired with Doc Sarpolis for another bout on the card, while Mike Romano, Italian champion, will meet Karl Vogel, the German oak, in the other bout.

"Gyp" Lawless on Shelf With Abscess

Johnny "Gyp" Lawless, Boston University's hard hitting veteran outfielder, may be lost to the team for the game with Harvard April 7, Johnny has an abscess on his leg and it is bothering him considerably.

The abcess has been lanced and his physician says it will be some time before Lawless can indulge in exercise of any form.

School Football

Football is beginning to get in the air again. Many coaches are making their plans for spring practice and just as soon as the weather is settled, they will be on.

The increase in football in the spring has taken its toll with the game of baseball as many schools have talked about dropping it and many others have curtailed their schedules so that the coach may spend time with both teams.

Round the Links With BOBBY JONES

By BOBBY JONES

National Amateur, British Open and Southern Open Champion.

WHEN I wrote some time ago about playing from sand bunkers, I mentioned three methods of extricating the ball from that kind of hazard. I called the three shots the blast, the chip, and the cut-shot, and I am afraid that I referred to these as the three legitimate shots to employ from a bunker. I did not mean by that to imply that there existed no other legitimate way of accomplishing the same results.

I wrote recently of the imagination which enabled a player to conceive and execute strokes from difficult situations. There certainly is no place on a golf course where the player's flare for originality can have freer rein than in a sand-trap.

Once there, he has the selection of any number of means of getting out, granting, of course, that his ball is not lying in a diabolical furrow nor in an innocent, though equally atrocious, heel-mark.

When a man walks into a bunker he must be in a very unsettled state of mind. Approaching his ball lying upon the fairway, he can be reasonably sure that he can see whatever club or shot the distance and terrain may demand. But, on the sand, his situation is vastly different, for there he must accommodate his ambitions intentions to the lie he has been lucky enough to draw.

I ALWAYS remember, with much satisfaction, a shot which I played at Columbus in the last round of the open championship. Of course, fortune smiled on that shot, as she did upon many more I played during that last nine holes, but I have long zones ceased to expect to do anything at golf without some assistance from the fickle dame.

It was on the thirteenth hole, and I had just holed a four at the long twelfth and had been informed that Joe Turnesa, who was playing two holes ahead, had taken six on that hole, and five on the thirteenth. Then, for the first time, I began to have some hope of winning, for I was only two strokes behind, and if I could get four at thirteen, I would be only a stroke behind with five holes to play.

BUT the thirteenth was against the wind that day, and my spoon second, hit with every intention of bringing it in from left to right into the wind, held straight to the line and finished in the trap to the left of the green. The ball was lying near the left bank, leaving the full width of the bunker to be played over.

The hole was a scant ten or fifteen feet beyond the opposite bank, and about six feet beyond the hole was a terrace, which would carry the ball far away down the slope if it should pass over the top of the green.

In this situation, an explosive shot or blast was of no use, because the ball, with no backspin, could not be stopped short of the terrace; it was some assistance from the fickle dame.

I do not know what I should have or could have done had not the bank of the bunker been low and sort too precipitous. At least, it was only a little over two feet high, and sloping.

My only chance lay in a run-up shot, hoping to take the bank with the proper speed. I hit the ball with a mashie-iron, scuttling it because I took too much wrist to climb the bank. Luckily, it curled down the slope and came to rest four feet to the left of the hole. I got the next one in and felt vastly relieved.

A few disasters resulting from a desire to display brilliant technique are enough to harden even the most sensitive nature. To approach the hole remains the ultimate object in the game.

We Sleep

Maine Advertises

We know now that Spring will be in at any minute and that Summer is on the way because in Quincy Market we have been fresh rhubarb and dandelion greens.

And on Sunday there was printed in the newspapers the first of the State of Maine's advertisements for the year, a proclamation which set us hankering for Cobbosseecontee.

"Our Summer Home in Maine," the announcement was entitled, and in the picture Pa and Ma were taking it easy on the cottage porch while young Bill waved to them from the crotch of a nearby tree. The lake was less than a stone's throw distant. The advertisement began:

"Perhaps there's a bit of Maine you would like to own. A camp in the big woods, a cottage or farmhouse by lake or sea, a little colonial home in some quaint elm-shaded town—any of these could be yours at no great cost. Come to Maine for your vacation this year and look around for a permanent summer home—a place you and your family will be proud to own. We will gladly help you find it."

"We" are the members of the Maine Development Commission, which maintains a publicity bureau at No. 121 Longfellow Square, in Portland. Among its officers best known in Boston are Chairman Clarence C. Stetson, of Bangor, and Mr. Hiram W. Ricker, of Poland Spring.

Is this sort of "boosting" helpful? DOES it "pay"?

The questions are timely because Massachusetts for two years has been approaching the question of State publicity rather half-heartedly. A bill which now appears to be making its way slowly through the Legislature provides for the establishment of a State Publicity Bureau as an adjunct to the Department of Labor and Industries. This would be at least a beginning. WE move slowly in these enterprises.

Maine has found publicity not only helpful but necessary. All the wide-awake States are in it. Two years ago the Maine Legislature made provision for $50,000 to be expended annually by the Development Commission. Towns and cities give additional thousands to the fund. The Maine folk do more than call attention to their 3,000 lakes and 5,000 brooks and streams, Sunday's advertising emphasized the high quality of State of Maine corn, peas and blueberries.

Eager to welcome tourist, camper and visitor, Maine desires most of all to attract the resident. Her Summer business is worth more than $100,000,000 annually; the assessed valuation of the real and personal property of NON-RESIDENTS has gone up 324 per cent in 30 years!

New Hampshire and Vermont, too, have found it pays to advertise. It remains to be seen how long Massachusetts will be content to follow a "defensive" policy, how long before we begin telling the country of the opportunities which are here in business and in agriculture as well of our schools and colleges, libraries and parks, lovely residential towns and inviting shore resorts.

Maine has demonstrated that publicity may be prudent, dignified, high-toned and EXTREMELY PROFITABLE.

Family Provisions

Once We All Lived in This Way

TAKING CROCODILE MEAT TO THE FAMILY

This picture reminds us that we should be grateful for our blessings, refrigerators, clean food, bathtubs, electric light, all the comforts we owe to our predecessors.

Your ancestors were once much like this man, although of a different race.

This is an Australian savage, returning from a successful crocodile hunt. He brings with him large portions of the animal that he and his companions have killed. The tail and part of the body is on his head, huge pieces of crocodile meat in his hands.

He piles [illegible] on the shore, puts out a hook with bait in front of the b[illegible] crouches down out of sight, while the crocodile walks up [illegible] the bait, and is caught by the hook. Then the hunters kill [illegible] eat the meat raw, as much as they want, and take the rest home.

The hide [illegible] which might enable them to live comfortably, are thrown away to rot. The natives are too far from the market.

Thus, all of our ancestors once lived, except that bear [illegible] mentioned in last two columns.

THE HUMANIZING OF GREAT WEALTH

By DR. FRANK CRANE

WE still linger under the influence of ideas that were formed long ago under different conditions. We have institutions which have long since lost their usefulness and still hold sway. Most churches are based upon issues that we have given up long since.

One of these notions is that wealth of any kind, especially great wealth, is necessarily criminal.

Christ warned us that it is as hard for a rich man to get into the kingdom of heaven as for a camel to pass through the eye of a needle, and the saying was often heard in those times of, "Woe unto the rich!"

But somehow by the slow influence of the teachings of Christ or for some other reason the nature of wealth has changed.

Time was when wealth was simply property of which other people were deprived and by which we were benefitted. It was apparently impossible to conceive of a man being rich unless he had robbed someone else. Even nowadays a rich man is often looked upon as one who has profited in some way by the misfortunes of his fellows, as there cannot be a man of great wealth unless there are many men greatly poor.

But the character of the modern wealth unit is different from that in former days. Then the basis of wealth might have been robbery or thievery or special privilege of some kind, but nowadays few people can become very wealthy unless it is by benefitting others.

Henry Ford is not begrudged his great fortune for the reason that in making it he has helped the general public and also employed labor at good wages.

It is significant that men of great wealth, instead of founding fortunes and giving of their possessions to dissipated heirs are seeking to benefit the public by their fortunes.

A. P. Gianninni, the head of one of the largest aggregations of capital in the world, the Bank of Italy, has recently donated over one million dollars to his native state for the benefit of agriculture. He has said that he is determined not to die rich. He evidently does not want to perpetuate an enormous unit of wealth, but in some way to benefit the people by it.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

HAS 16-year-old Eddie suddenly taken to washing his ears and pressing his Sunday pants? Is 15-year-old Alice mooning around, reading poetry and demanding vampish black satin dresses and permanent waves? And are you and Dad ha-ha-ing and making wise cracks about "puppy love"?

DON'T!

Puppy love's no laughing business. Enormous forces are involved in that first waking of desire—tremendous things happen, things which may bless or blight the future life.

First love is more than a yearning toward another personality—it is a yearning toward all the wonder and beauty of a newly discovered universe. suddenly the soul, which has, through infancy, slept softly, coiled within itself, arouses—stretches—beholds with a delicious amazement the world about it—feels with a trembling delight the forces at work within itself—then with a fierce, unreasoning hunger, reaches out toward this vast, new treasure which seems centered in another young laughing face.

And we say—"Eddie is gone on little Mary."

But Eddie isn't gone on Mary. Eddie's gone on Life—on Beauty—on Courage and Romance and Adventure and Honor—and God.

AND ALL EDDIE'S ADULT ATTITUDE IS GOING TO BE COLORED BY THIS HAPPINESS OR MISERY OF THIS FIRST SPELL OF "PUPPY LOVE."

Turn back the leaves of your own life, Pal. Do you remember that first, enchanted summer when you used to creep along in the shadow of the hedge, late at night, to look at the light in Her window? Or, being older perhaps, you read Omar Khayyam together, very solemnly and decided that you were Fatalists. Those immense talks you had together—those soul-searching disputes—The walks you took, when all the world seemed wrapped in a white, dazzling web that set you dizzy—groping with your heart—The nights when for the first time you really saw the stars spilling like golden fruit from out a purple bowl. That first half frightened kiss—

Did "puppy love" come beautifully to you, like that?

Or did it come in a sadder, uglier way? Furtively, with savage hunger that poisoned and bewildered you—

However it came, it has left its mark on your character which will never be erased. That was your first contact with life—your first glimpse of God. It was a stormy glimpse, because all of your nature was in riot. Spring at the flood. Your future world was shaping out of that chaos. Ever since you have been better—or worse—for that experience.

Remember that when you see your youngsters grow starry-eyed and self-conscious. They too are waking, entering into their storm. Remember how you needed sympathy. Remember how hideously each jeering word hurt. Remember how bewildered you were—how you suffered from a feeling of inferiority—and yet what exquisite visions troubled your darkness—Remember—and be gentle and reverent. Your children, now, are listening to God. He is shaping a world in their young chaos.

A New Yorker's Europe

by O. O. McINTYRE

PARIS, March 20—The "first showing" at dressmaking salons takes on the pomp of an exclusive ball. It is a new stunt this season to hold them at night with especially invited guests arriving at 9 o'clock, arrayed as though attending the opera.

Cocktails, champagne and cordials are served with a buffet lunch. Music floats from orchestras hidden behind palms. The finest establishments are in rambling old mansions with spacious inside courts which once housed notables such as Talleyrand.

Dressmaking is one of the most profitable trades in Paris. One proprietor paid taxes on a profit of $1,800,000 last year. She is reputed to be the "girl friend" of an English duke and he helps her dissipate the profits over the gambling tables at Monte Carlo. Callot sisters own the Galleries Lafayette. Jeanne Lanvin, Paton, Lucien Lelong and a dozen others are millionaires.

Mannikins imported from America have given local mannikins a better standing. Save for one tragic example, the Americans have behaved. The Parisian mannikin has always been underpaid and being naturally beautiful she followed the easiest way and made the calling disreputable. They are mostly Kepteses.

It is interesting to watch them in gorgeous frocks parade in their slinking way and then pirouette—miracles of buoyancy and grace. But in all the grandeur one thinks of those spindly-legged, pinch-faced and stooped needle girls behind the scenes—children toiling for a few francs daily.

To the French saleswomen in the dressmaking parlors every feeling gives way when it becomes a question of profit. They appear enraptured and coo foolishly in a sort of hysterical babble. All work on a percentage basis and a big sale is a small fortune.

It is the poor American husband sitting in a corner fiddling with his cane or hat, while his wife falls prey to the blandishments, who pays for grand stairways, carpeted salons and other magnificent trappings. Yet he seems to enjoy it just the same. Good humored saps—these American husbands.

THIS morning in the woods at Ville D'Avray, near Sevre and 20 minutes from Paris, I visited the little chateau of Corot, the painter. It has been kept intact and it was easy to see in the beauty of the surroundings how he got much of his inspiration. Corot was once critically hooted by the French.

THERE is one phase of French life slightly disconcerting to the Yank. When he asks for a manicure in some of the barber shops he cannot get used to ministrations of a male attendant with a long flowing beard. I wish I had the hunting rights for many of the beards in France. I imagine you could always flush out a bevy of something or other.

THE chasseur is an example of the occasional lapse in French morals. He is a young messenger attached to hotels, cafes and bars and knows more of Parisian depravity than the most satiated boulevardier. He is in league with bagnios and pegs shows from which he gets his percentage. He has the brightness of the alert American newsboys—which reminds me all newspaper vendors here are old men and women—and speaks English.

AND speaking of depravity, this afternoon I walked through rue de Laipe near the Bastille. It is reputed to be the most depraved street in Paris, a short, narrow strip filled with dance halls, where men dance with men, and circular bars. Pamphlets on homo-sexual topics are given away free in the drinking places. Pernod, a nauseous absinthelike drink, is the favorite beverage.

THERE is a type of Frenchman wearing dark clothes and black gloves who will be seen walking in the woods off beaten paths of the Bois every day. His hands are folded behind and he moves showy as though lost in reverie. After a long stroll he usually repairs to some sidewalk table and will sit silently for an hour sipping a mild drink. He is the sentimental sort who likes to wrap himself in solitude. There are others in flowing ties and velvet coats who stroll around the Bois reading books of poetry, bumping now and then into a tree in a comic opera manner.

Our Boys Want to Fly

Let Them Learn

S. Trubee Davison, Assistant Secretary for Air, deeply interested, as is his chief, Secretary Davis, in aviation, says this country lacks fliers. He "deplored the lack of men fit for service."

Secretary Davis might send to each important college in the United States, one or two good, SAFE flying machines, with capable instructors, and announce that all college boys, their parents consenting, will be taught flying. Thanks, partly, to enthusiasm aroused by Lindbergh, at least five thousand college men a year would gladly learn flying.

They teach flying at English universities. Why not try here at the Universities of Wisconsin, California, Chicago, Yale, Harvard, Princeton and a few others to start?

The family in the cave gathered to chew the flesh raw or singed on a smoky fire.

We owe everything we have to men that worked, lived and died, risked their lives and used their brains before we came. We ought to prove our gratitude by trying to do something that will be of use to those that come after us.
